Roosevelt May Not Advocate Quick Move to Ban Monopoly

May Favor Long-Range Probe Before Legislation

COMPLEX PROBLEM

Joint Committee May be Named to Discuss Bills

Washington—(AP)—Some administration supporters in congress said today President Roosevelt's forthcoming message on monopoly may suggest a long-range investigation rather than immediate legislation.

They said the complexity of the monopoly problem might make it desirable to set up a joint senate-house committee to go over legislative suggestions and make recommendations for the next congressional session.

An effort to enact any broad monopoly program at this session, it was said, might bring weeks of debate, postponing the scheduled May adjournment.

There has been no word from the White House as to whether Mr. Roosevelt has yet begun preparation of the message. He advised congress early in January that he would have such a message later.

Two Different Proposals

It is known, however, that two divergent ideas of future government-business relations have been urged upon Mr. Roosevelt.

These views have been given public expression by Donald Richberg, former NRA administrator, and Robert H. Jackson, assistant attorney general.

Richberg advocates relaxation of the anti-trust laws to permit business planning under government supervision. Jackson would tighten the laws in a "trust-busting" effort.

Some observers interpreted an address by Jackson last night at Syracuse, N. Y., as aimed at Richberg's idea. In it the assistant attorney general said:

"I have an instinctive distrust of the long-time ability of government to regulate rather than prevent concentration of control. Experience demonstrates, particularly in the public utility industry, that government regulation tends too frequently over a period of time to pass under the control of those who are supposed to be regulated."

Fail to Agree

Administration banking advisers, considering the advisability of a "death sentence" for bank holding companies, were reported by usually well-informed officials also to be divided.

They are agreed, these officials said: that some regulation is needed to prevent bank holding companies from becoming too powerful, but not all favor their abolition by government decree.

Recalling the bitter controversy evoked by the "death sentence" provision for some utility holding companies in the holding company act of 1935, the banking advisers yesterday conferred with Chairman William O. Douglas of the securities commission.

It was learned that at this conference the lineup of banking advisers was as follows:

For abolition: Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and Chairman Jesse H. Jones of the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

For regulation only: Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board and Chiarman Leo T. Crowley of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

Undecided: Comptroller of the Currency J. F. T. O'Connor (who will leave office April 1.)

Favor Compromise

Of this list, Morgenthau and Crowley were said to be most willing to compromise or shift in the interest of harmony. Crowley was reported to be opposed to bank holding companies in principle, but dubious of the wisdom of abolishing them until efforts at regulation had been made and tried.

President Roosevelt indicated recently bank holding companies were next on his list of holding companies slated for extinction or rigid regulation.

No Violence to Jews in Rumania, King Carol Says

Government Won't Sanction Programs in Dealing With Problem

BY ALVIN J. STEINKOFF

Bucharest, Rumania —(AP) — King Carol, monarch of 18,000,000 people, assured the world today it need fear no Jewish program in Rumania.

Speaking quickly and softly in perfect English, the king in a half-hour audience in his quiet study, a sunny room of the royal palace in the heart of Bucharest, told this writer:

"A Jewish problem? Yes, we have one and we are wrestling with it. How ultimately the problem is to be met is not altogether clear, but the first and important point of our policy will be that there shall be no violence to Jews. Of that we are certain."

Carol, in uniform of Khakai and gold with ribbons of many decorations on his breast, sat at his great mahogany desk with its inlaid top.

Sees Problems Solved

He seemed completely certain of satisfactory solution to the perplexing issues confronting the new government of Premier Octavian Goga —which made nationalism and anti-Semitism its chief program.

"It is understandable that the United States should be interested in developments here, because you yourself have many Jews, certainly more than we.

"It is understandable that in some quarters there might be concern. But it may be stated on the highest authority that Rumania contemplates no inhumanities."

Asked whether there was prospect of mass deportations or of colonization of Jews in some other regions of the world, the monarch said that, on the part of the government, the matter had received no detailed study.

Police Prevent Sailors' Battle

Chinese Crew Attempts to Issue Challenge to Japanese

Boston —(AP)— A heavy police guard at the docked Japanese liner Keiyo Maru today frustrated efforts of a Chinese crew on another vessel to challenge the Japanese seamen to a wharf-fight without weapons.

The challenge, intercepted from a stevedore emissary, was issued several hours after Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty ordered out the guard at the request of the Japanese line's local agents, Patterson, Wylde and Company, on reports "something might happen."

A sister ship of the Keiyo Maru narrowly escaped being bombed in Seattle, Wash., harbor last week.

Inspector Benjamin Goodman, head of the Boston police radical squad, told of the challenge on the part of mebmers of the Chinese crew aboard the steamer Salier, which was tied up astern of the Keiyo Maru at the army base.

The missive asked the Japanese to select their 25 best men to meet 25 of the Chinese on the wharf without weapons. Inspector Goodman plucked it from a stevedore before it could be delivered to the Keiyo Maru, so that the Japanese had no opportunity to learn of, or reply to, the offer of combat.

Warns Students Against Use of Anti-Sleep Drugs

Ann Arbor, Mich.—(AP)— Reports that sleep-preventing drugs were being used by students in studying for examinations brought a warning today from University of Michigan medical authorities.

Dr. Warren E. Forsythe, director of the health service, said the drugs "defeat the purpose for which they are taken." He and Dean A. C. Furstenberg, dean of the Medical school, advised against their use.

Expect House To Pass Naval Bill by Feb. 15

Committee to Start Hearings Monday on Roosevelt Program

OPPOSITION IS SEEN

Midwestern Bloc Likely To Fight Proposed Increases

Washington —(AP)— Leaders said today they expected the house to pass President Roosevelt's huge army and navy expansion program by Feb. 15.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) called the house naval affairs committee to begin hearings Monday on a bill to authorize the $800,000,000 naval program.

He predicted a favorable report would be forthcoming after "two or three days."

The measure, carrying out Mr. Roosevelt's request for a 20 per cent increase in the navy's building limitations, would authorize 47 additional fighting ships, 22 auxiliaries and 1,000 airplanes. The president suggested that of the total, two battleships and two cruisers be started this year.

Plans Conference

Chairmen May (D-Ky.) of the house military affairs committee said he would confer immediately with war department officials to get their views on how best to fulfill the president's recommendations for strengthening land forces.

Chairman Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval committee and others predicted congress would give quick approval to the requests made by the president in his special message yesterday.

Members of a midwestern bloc in the house, however, indicated they would oppose the program. In this group were representatives Tiegan (F. L.-Minn.), Johnson (F. L.-Minn.), and Withrow (P-Wis.).

Representative Boileau (P-Wis.), protested against the recommendation for more battleships while Representative Sauthoff (P-Wis.) announced himself in opposition to the program.

Representative Fish (R-N. Y.) said he believed the proposals involved an attempt to "police the world" and Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) asked:

"What is the foreign policy which might lead us into the very maelstrom which the president condemns?"

Others Protest

The National Council for Prevention of War, Women's International League, World Peaceways and the Fellowship of Reconciliation, protested the president's program was leading to war.

Navy officials disclosed that part of the $15,000,000 fund President Roosevelt recommended for experimentation with weapons for war might go for development of a "mosquito fleet." These would be composed of small, speedy vessels carrying two torpedoes, small guns and a crew of eight or nine.

Both senate and house were in recess today and southern senators held a caucus to review their fight against the anti-lynching bill.

Senator Connally (D-Texas) of the senate finance committee said he would attempt to attach his anti-war profits proposal to the general tax revision bill when the house sends it to the senate.

Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military committee said he would call up the Hill industrial mobilization bill by Feb. 15. It is on the house calendar.

Unlike the Connally proposal, the Hill bill does not contain tax provisions. It would direct the treasury to report to congress, in event of war, a tax schedule designed to prevent profiteering.

Both measures would give the president power in war time to mobilize industrial and material resources and to fix prices.

Dane County Board to Consider Allegations

Madison — (AP)—The Dane county board will meet Feb. 24 to decide whether it should recommend to District Attorney Lyall T. Beggs that criminal action be taken against certain county highway committee officials, Frank Stewart, chairman, announced today.

The officials are charged with mismanagement and "lack of business sense."

In a report given to Governor LaFollete by assistant Attorney General L. W. Vaudreuil criminal action and civil litigation was recommended.

The governor and Beggs conferred but have not decided what action to take. Only at the request of the county board can civil action be taken, but the district attorney is free to start criminal court proceedings.

Beggs will confer with Attorney General Orland S. Loomis before deciding whether criminal action should be started.

Consider Plans For Two Bridges Across Niagara

New Spans Contemplated To Replace 'Honeymoon' Structure

Niagara Falls, N. Y.—(AP)—Plans for two new spans over the Niagara river gorge were being considered by engineers today, as the ice mass which tore down famed "honeymoon bridge" Thursday moved relentlessly onward to Lake Ontario.

Simultaneously with the announcement by International Railway company officials that the fallen bridge, owned by the company, would be replaced, came word that Ontario province and New York state were considering construction of another span 1,000 feet downstream.

As the shattered length of the Honeymoon span lay sprawled grotesquely over the ice mass that had caused its destruction, experts studied devices by which the steelwork might be salvaged. The wreck contains an estimated 2,600 tons of steel, with an approximately value of $31,000 as scrap.

Immediate salvage operations were considered unlikely, however, in view of the continued movement of the ice mass. Late yesterday a large segment of the bridge sank from sight in open water near the American shore, and observers said the wreckage on its bed of ice appeared to have moved downstream about 40 feet.

Meanwhile the miniature glacier continued its grinding way downstream toward Lake Ontario. The Niagara river above the cataract, considerably wider than in the gorge below, carried a steady stream of ice "rafts" over the falls. Some of the "rafts" were as long as a city block, and broke in the rapids and the falls to add their weight and pressure to the mass in the gorge.

Probe 'Sudden Deaths' In Mental Institutions

Boston —(AP)— Disclosure that 116 "sudden deaths" occurred in Massachusetts mental institutions last year today shot to more than 500, including 8 slayings, the total deaths under investigation by state authorities in their investigation into conditions in state insane hospitals.

Dr. Clifton C. Perkins, acting commissioner of mental diseases, revealed that of those who met "sudden deaths" last year, 73 died of complications from fractures and 29 were suicides. One victim of a homicide was included, and others were alcoholics, burning and drowning victims.

The latest victim disclosed by aids of State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley was Edward M. Souther of Malden, whose death last Dec. 29 was attributed in a medical examiner's report to "bronchial pneumonia following an accident."

Buckley said Souther was assaulted at Danvers State hospital on Dec. 21 by another patient, Roy Peabody of Lynn.

Hunt Bodies In Munitions Plant Blasts

Over 300 Feared Killed or Injured in Italian Tragedy

FIRE BANS SEARCH

Carelessness of Workman Is Blamed for Disaster

Segni, Italy—(AP)—From 300 to 400 persons were believed to have been killed and injured today in a series of explosions which blasted one of Italy's greatest munitions factories.

Frantically working rescue crews had been able to drag but 15 bodies from the wreckage. Firemen believed many more would be found when they were able to penetrate the smoldering ruins.

The explosion was blamed officially on the carelessness of a worker who broke a compressed air tube. A communique announcing the disaster gave no definite casualty figures but said there were "some dead and dozens injured."

Stores of wool used in making high explosive were burning in the cellars and prevented further rescue work.

Many persons were injured by flying splinters of glass and the tiles hurtled from the rooftops of neighboring buildings by the force of the blast.

Two minor explosions occurred at 7:35 a. m. and 7:50 a. m. before the huge blast at 8:03 a. m. just as the day shift was relieving the night workers.

Town Badly Damaged

Segni, a town of 10,000 people 38 miles southeast of Rome, suffered widespread damage. Many roofs were shaken down and virtually all windows in the town were blown out. Merchandise was dumped all over the floors of stores as shelves collapsed.

King Vittorio Emanuele and Queen Elena hurried from Rome to the scene of the tragedy. They were accompanied by the governor of Rome.

Premier Benito Mussolini was expected to take personal charge of the rescue work.

Thirty-nine squadrons of firemen were rushed from Rome and other surrounding towns to fight the blaze started by the blasts which destroyed three small concrete buildings.

Thousands of townspeople watched the fire from a distance, held back by line of carabinieri. Detachments of the constabulary guarded business houses to prevent looting.

Evacuated Plants

The superintendent of the Bombrino Pariodi Delfino factory, built some six years ago to speed Italy's re-armament program, told Mussolini the number of casualties would have been much larger had he not ordered the plants evacuated after the first explosion.

The premier visited the scene in mid-afternoon and then walked through the center of the town, inspecting the wide spread damage.

Red Cross figures set the number of injured at 200 but others, who were known to have suffered minor wounds, were not taken to hospitals.

The full story of the disaster was hid in the smoking mass of hot debris which defied the flood of water poured on it by firemen.

The concrete sheds which were destroyed had been built largely underground These sheds-the-explosive section—were separated by low-lying hills from other parts of the munitions works.

Rumanian Envoy to Moscow Is Recalled

Moscow —(AP)— Diplomatic circles disclosed today that Edmond Ciuntu, Rumanian ambassador to Russia, had been recalled to Bucharest.

No reason for the recall was given but Ciuntu had been considered a close associate of Nicolas Titulescu, former Rumanian premier, who had been outspoken in his opposition to the present government.

On Jan. 21, M. S Ostrowski, the soviet ambassador to Rumania, took formal leave of King Carol and announced he would have no successor. Ostrowski was reported from abroad to have asked to be recalled because of the rise to power of Premier Octavian Goga.

Britain, France, Russia Seek U. S. Cooperation In Plan to Help China

Propose to Extend Economic and Financial Aid

WASHINGTON ALOOF

Poland Acts to Block League O. K. of Resolution

Geneva — (AP) — Great Britain, France and Russia were reported today to have agreed to extend economic and financial aid to China in her war with Japan provided the United States would cooperate.

Competent League of Nations circles said the three major league powers had determined to follow such a course either with or without approval of the league council.

A Polish decision to block passage by the council of a resolution of aid led the three powers to take the position that such a measure was unnecessary. The resolution passed by the league assembly Oct. 6, 1937, was deemed sufficient to justify the aid to China.

The October resolution said, in part, that the assembly:

"Expresses its moral support for China and recommends that members of the league should refrain from taking any action which might have the effect of weakening China's power of resistance and thus of increasing her difficulties in the present conflict, and should also consider how far they individually can extend aid to China."

Proposal Not Detailed

There was no indications of what steps might be taken to get cooperation of the United States in the plan to help China.

Poland blocked the council resolution, authoritative quarters disclosed, by declaring she woud vote against the measure.

The decision was made known by the Polish delegate and foreign minister, Joseph Beck, in a conference with French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos preceding a private session of principal delegates to study the text of the resolution to help China. The measure would have to be adopted unanimously by the league council.

Today's private session to study the proposal itself had given impetus to reports it had met resistance in several quarters.

Foreign Ministers Eden, Delbos and Litvinoff of Britain, France and Russia met with Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese league delegate. League circles indicated yesterday they advised him against pressing for strong action at this time.

U. S. FROWNS ON PLAN

Washington—(AP)— Secretary Hull indicated today the United States was not inclined to join in a proposed plan by which Great Britain, France, and Soviet Russia would supply arms and military equipment to China in her struggle with Japan.

Utility Fails to Win Official O. K. For Refinancing

Commission Refuses to Sanction Northern States Power Program

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission announced today it had refused to approve a $14,000,000 refinancing plan proposed by the Northern States Power company, Eau Claire, a Byllesby utility.

"If the commission were to grant this application, it would, in effect, be in the position of permitting innocent prospective purchasers to invest in securities of a corporation which the commission knows is grossly over-capitalized," the order of denial said.

The Northern States company operates in west central Wisconsin, including Eau Claire, LaCrosse and Chippewa Falls.

The commission said the utility proposed to issue 195,000 shares of no par common stock to refinance 25,000 shares of $100 par value totalling $2,500,000 and to repay $11,500,000 in loans from a sister company, Northern States Power of Minnesota.

Commission's Stand

According to the commission the utility owes the Minnesota company $16,987,831 but promised that $5,480,000 of this debt would be cancelled if the proposed refinancing was authorized. The commission contended that at least $10,222,000 must be cancelled.

The regulatory body said that the applicant has property worth at most $30,000,000 and has outstanding $40,222,831 in bonds, loans and capital stock or excess capitalization of more than $10,000,000.

Declaring its purpose should be to embrace every opportunity to eliminate over-capitalization, the commission said:

"This is especially true, as in the pending case, when the method employed in reducing or eliminating the over-capitalization does not affect the credit of the corporation nor injure existing security holders."

The commission said it would approve refinancing if the utility gets at least $10,222,000 of its debt cancelled, uses all surplus earnings, to establish an adequate depreciation reserve and issues additional stock in exchange for the balance of the debt at the same part or stated value as provided for the $2,500,000 of common stock now outstanding.

5-Day Week for Office Workers

U. S. Steel Move Results From Recession; Not Permanent Policy

Pittsburgh — (AP) — The United States Steel corporation, traditional pace-maker for the industry, will place all white collar workers in the parent and subsidiary companies on a five-day week effective Feb. 1, resulting in salary reductions of approximately 9 per cent.

The "share-the-work" plan, placed in effect on the eve of contract renewal negotiations with the CIO'S Steel Workers Organizing Committee, will extend from Chairman of the Board Myron C. Taylor down to office boy. The corporation's office workers are now on a five and one-half day week.

A representative of the corporation explained the move was brought about by the recession, and did not constitute a permanent policy. Although it means less money for the present in the pay envelopes, the basic rate remains unchanged. Workers are to return to a maximum five and a half day week when business condition warrants, the representative said.

No official announcement was made, but a high authority of the corporation estimated that between 20,000 and 25,000 workers would be affected.

Meantime at Wheeling, W. Va., the Wheeling Steel corporation, called 1,200 men back to work at its Benwood, W. Va. plant, effective next Tuesday.

Ironing Out Kinks in Crop Controlling Plan

Washington— (AP)— Senator Smith (D-S. C.) said farm bill conferees were busy today "taking the kinks out" of the ever-normal granary program.

The chairman of the senate agriculture committee said that the joint senate-house committee would have to meet again before finally completing action.

The committee has reached agreement on details of the broad plan for controlling planting and marketing of wheat, corn, cotton, rice and tobacco, Smith said, and now is "going over legal language" embodying these points.

Professor, Ousted During War-Time, Wins Exoneration

Minneapolis—(AP)—A war-time professor at the University of Minnesota who was discharged in 1917 for alleged disloyalty to the United States, today had been exonerated by the board of regents of the school.

Prof. William A. Schaper, now a member of the University of Oklahoma faculty, at Norman, Okla., was given the title of professor emeritus at Minnesota, and a check for $5,000 by the regents, meeting here yesterday to reconsider its action of 20 years ago. The board expunged from its 1917 records the Schaper incident.

Schaper was professor of political science at Minnesota when the World war broke out. He opposed entrance of the United States into the conflict and was summoned before the board and discharged.

At Norman, Prof. Schaper said he was "grateful" for the board's step yesterday. He plans to remain at Oklahoma.

Oregon Governor Names Attorney To Senate Seat

Appoints Alfred E. Reames, Democrat, as Steiwer's Successor

Salem, Ore.—(AP)— Alfred Evan Reames, Medford attorney, today was appointed by Governor Charles Martin, Democrat, to serve out the unexpired term of Frederick Steiwer as United States senator from Oregon. Reames is a Democrat.

Reames will be 68 years old Feb. 5. He is expected to go to Washington immediately to take the seat of Senator Steiwer, whose resignation is effective Monday. The term has 11 months to run.

Senator Steiwer resigned Thursday, after 11 years in the upper house, to become a member of a Washington law firm. He was one of the staunchest Republican critics of the Roosevelt administration.

Oregon's senior senator is Charles McNary, the Republican minority leader.

The new senator is widely known in Oregon. He was educated at the University of the Pacific, San Jose, Calif., University of Oregon, and Washington and Lee university.

Leaving school to enter private law practice, Reames became district attorney of his home county and later was a member of the executive committee of the democratic state central committee. He has been interested in mining, timber and public utility dvelopments.

"I do not intend to enter the coming primaries," Reames said, "nor would it be my purpose intentionally to obstruct or to promote the candidacy of any Democratic candidate for the nomination."

Confirm Sale of Patten Property

No Objections Made Against $89,000 Bid of Fox River Firm

Confirmation of the sale of the Pattern Paper company to the Fox River Paper company, which bid $89,000 for it at a sheriff's sale Jan. 21, was made by Circuit Judge Edgar V. Werner this morning. No objections to the sale were made.

The Fox River Paper company plans to use the buildings on the Pattern property for warehouses, sell the machinery and use the water power in their present mills, Arthur G. Wakeman, general manager, stated at the time his company's bid was made. The Patten company owns three-eights of the river's water power at that point and the Fox River Paper company the remainder Wakeman stated, with the exception of a small amount going to one of the knitting mills.

The sale marked the last chapter of the Pattern Paper company which was incorporated in 1882. The mill, employing about 110 men and women, was closed Sept. 1 of last year. The Fox River Paper company held a mortgage of $75,000 on the Patten property.

Racine Woman Guilty of Setting Her Store Afire

Racine—(AP)—Mrs. Rose Cozzo was convicted of arson by a municipal court jury last night. She was accused of setting fire to her grocery store Nov. 11.

District Attorney Oscard Edwards presented evidence intended to show Mrs. Cozzo set the fire because she was jealous of her husband. Judge E. R. Burgess said sentence would be imposed Feb. 2.

Summonses Served in Buckman Civil Suits

Wausau —(AP)— A. W. Prehn said today summonses had been served in civil suits to recover $2,000,000 which he recently announced would be instituted against three principal officers of B. E. Buckman and company, Madison securities firm.

Prehn is counsel for receivers in the federal bankruptcy action against the firm.

The suits, Prehn said, would name B. E. Buckman, president, L. C. George, vice president, and E. C. Holt, secretary-treasurer.

Prehn said the complaints would be filed in Dane county circuit court within 10 days. He explained the delay was due to the fact that information obtained in current hearings in the bankruptcy proceedings is being incorporated in the complaints as it is developed. The hearings are to continue next week.

Government Favors Armistice on Air Attacks in Spain

Barcelona, Spain —(AP) — An air raid armistice to stop the "shedding of innocent blood" in bombardments behind the lines was proposed today by the Spanish government.

Forays such as those which recently caused hundreds of deaths and an incalculable number of wounded at Valencia, Barcelona, Salamanca, Seville and a score of lesser towns would cease by mutual agreement if the insurgents approved the suggestion.

The government is willing to consider any initiative tending to mutual agreement to cast aside such warfare which, beside shedding innocent blood, accelerates the ruin of Spain," the government ministry of defense said.

(The insurgent high command at Salamanca thus far has given no indication whether it would enter into such a pact.)

The government, describing bombing of cities behind the battle lines as "cruel," warned that "every insurgent bombing will be answered with reprisals" and "bombing of our cities will not go unpardoned."

Kentuckian Assumes Duties as New Commander-in-Chief of U. S. Fleet

San Pedro, Calif. —(AP)— A distinguished sea fighter from Kentucky takes over command today of the United States fleet.

The new commander-in-chief is Admiral Claude Charles Bloch of Bowling Green. This tall, smiling, keen-eyed native of the Blue Grass country, 59 years of age, by his 42 years in the naval service has become known among his fellow officers as one of the great naval leaders of modern times.

Change of high command is the most colorful ceremony of the fleet.

The four flag changes today moved to a colorful climax on the fleet flagship Pennsylvania's quarterdeck with Admiral Arthur Japy Hepburn turning command over to Admiral Bloch.

Aboard the California in the third ceremony of the day Admiral Bloch hauls down his red four-star flag and turns command of the battle force over to his distinguished classmate, Admiral Edward C. Kalbfus, elevated from the rank of vice admiral for the new command.

After the roar of saluting guns has died and congratulations passed, the four-star barge with the tall Kentuckian aboard moves over to the dreadnaught Pennsylvania. The whole complement is at attention on the fleet flagship. There also at attention are many visiting ship commanders and admirals.

Admiral Bloch is piped aboard to the quarterdeck, with eight side boys, four flourishes, and the ship's band playing "The Admiral's March."

Short, stern Admiral Hepburn, commander-in-chief since June 24, 1936, greets the tall Kentuckian.

Washington Is Awaiting Reply To New Protest

Ambassador Makes Representations to Tokio in Allison Case

Tokio—(AP)—United States Ambassador Joseph C. Grew today made representations to the Japanese government against the slapping of John M. Allison, ranking diplomat at Nanking, by a Japanese soldier.

Grew made the representations to Kensuke Horinouchi, vice minister for foreign affairs in an evening interview.

Allison, third secretary and in charge of the Nanking embassy, was slapped by a Japanese sentry when he sought to enter a Japanese barracks to investigate an attack on a Chinese woman who had been abducted from American property.

Japanese at Shanghai said the soldier was justified and would not be punished. An army spokesman criticized what he called Allison's "insolent attitude."

Washington — (AP)—State department officials awaited with intense interest today Japanese reaction to formal representations by this country against the slapping of an American embassy secretary at Nanking.

The department sent instructions last night to Ambassador Joseph C. Grew at Tokio, directing him to inquire as to what the Japanese government had done about one of its soldiers at Nanking slapping the face of John M. Allison, third secretary of the embassy.

Allison himself has furnished an account of the incident, which was officially published by the state department. Flatly denying the official Japanese version that he had insulted a Nipponese officer, the diplomat asserted the attack was unprovoked.

Allison's Account

Allison's account in brief:

Japanese soldiers forcibly had taken a Chinese woman from the agricultural implement shop at Nanking university, an American institution, and attacked her.

Allison and Charles Riggs, an American and a member of the university faculty, accompanied the woman, Japanese consular police and gendarmes to the Japanese barracks where she was to try to identify her assailants.

Allison and Riggs stepped inside the gate and a Japanese soldier rushed up, shouting "back, back."

"I backed up slowly," continued Allison, "but before I had time to get out of the gate he slapped me across the face and then turned and did the same to Mr. Riggs."

When the gendarmes advised that he and Riggs were Americans, Allison said, the soldier "became livid with rage" and was forcibly restrained only after he had torn off Riggs' collar."

RESTRICTIONS ON ALIENS

Shanghai — (AP)—Japanese today restricted the Shanghai areas into which foreigners may go, apparently in an effort to avoid possible new "incidents."

A Japanese embassy spokesman announced the regions prohibited to foreigners included Kiangwan, Tazang and Liuhong to the north of the city.

The only areas now open to foreigners in Shanghai, other than the International Settlement and the French concession, are the Hungjao territory and a small strip between Hongkew and the Kiangwan racecourse, but special passes are required even there.

Japanese a week ago announced foreigners would not yet be permitted to visit Nanking, although foreigners already there were allowed to stay.

Restrictions Unexplained

The embassy did not explain the new restrictions, but they apparently resulted from a combination of circumstances: the wish to avoid possible "incidents," military activity in the areas, and efforts by Chinese guerrila units to disrupt Japanese supply lines about Shanghai.

A spokesman said there would be no further announcements on the slapping by a Japanese sentry of John M Allison, United States diplomat in charge of the embassy at Nanking. An army spokesman yesterday said the sentry would not be punished as he was "doing his duty" in keeping Allison from entering a barracks in Nanking to investigate an alleged attack on a Chinese woman.

Thes low-moving war itself centered about Hangchow, about 125 miles south of Shanghai. The fighting was sporadic but was close enough so that gunfire could be heard within the city, an American at Hangchow reported.

Quiet Dinner Will Mark Roosevelt's 56th Anniversary

Washington—(AP)—A quiet dinner at the White House with his family and old friends, followed by a message to the hundreds of thousands celebrating elsewhere, will be President Roosepelt's part tonight in the nationwide observance of his fifty-sixth birthday anniversary.

The family group will be increased to 20 by the attendance of members of the "Cuff Link club." These are longtime associates to whom Mr. Roosevelt has given gold links in rememberance of days gone by.

Mrs. Roosevelt invited a group of film stars, including Frederic March, Joe E. Brown, Janet Gaynor, Eleanor Powell and Louise Fazenda, to the White House for luncheon.

They are in the capital to help raise $50,000 at seven benefit balls being held here for the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Sharing birthday honors with the president will be his newest daughter-in-law, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., who will be 22 Sunday. Tomorrow is the president's birthday but the parties were set for tonight almost everywhere.

His greetings and thanks will go to the nation in a radio program beginning at 10:30 p. m. (Appleton time)

President's Birthday Finds Him Fit; He's Mastered The Art of Relaxing

BY MORGAN BEATTY

Washington —(AP)— President Roosevelt has come through another hard year at the White House in excellent physical condition. Take that on the word of his personal physician.

For the President it has been a year of unusual strain. He fought and lost the fight to enlarge the Supreme Court and watched the fanfare over the discovery that a former Klansman had accepted an appointment to the court.

Yet, says Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, Mr. Roosevelt enters his 57th year in full vigor.

Lesson For Executives

In that Dr. McIntire finds a lesson for all busy executives.

"Any normal executive can and should exercise regularly and moderately," he says, "and he should get away from routine as much as possible."

True, the routine of the last 12 months did have its effect on the President. A couple of months ago an infected tooth spread poison through his bloodstream and he suffered a heavy cold. But the tooth was pulled and, despite the challenge of the recession and a delicate international situation, he apparently has come back to health.

This the word not only of the doctor and members of his inner circle. The thousands who see him at the White House receptions twice a week rarely fail to remark on his fortitude a he stands in line for an hour or more after a day's work.

Illness Taught A Lesson

Usually he is smiling, and always he is affable. Occasionally he tosses off a wise-crack to a well known guest, just as he does to newspaper reporters in twice-a-week press conferences.

To what does Dr. McIntire ascribe the President's physical stamina?

"First," says Dr. McIntire, "he has inherited an iron physique; second, infantile paralysis brought home to him the necessity of taking care of one's health; and, third, the President's daily routine exercises and swim keep him toned up.

"The President did not exercise regularly before he came to Washington in 1933. But ever since he has been in the White House, he has gone through regularly prescribed drills four or five times a week. Consequently his muscle tone and resilience is better now than it was five years ago.

Sleeps Like A Top

"These trips he takes are swell tonics. Even the last campaign did not faze him. The jaunt to Florida after the tooth came out late last year bucked up the President, even though he can never escape part of the routine the White House imposes on any President."

The President's associates think one of the secrets of his constant health is his ability to forget the cares of the day when he hits the pillow at night. He sleeps like a top.

Dr. McIntire does not check the President's heart, tongue, pulse and blood pressure every day. He gives his patient the "navy annual"—the physical examination naval officers have to take every year. It's one of the stiffest checkups of its kind.

A Bit Near-Sighted

"The President's response to all the physical tests is normal," says the physician. "His blood pressure is good, heart action excellent. He weights 184 just now, and that's ideal for a man his size and age."

"The President has lost only two teeth in his life, a rare record for a 56-year-old man. His glasses have been changed only once in five years. About two years ago the distance lenses were corrected a bit."

Dr. McIntire explains the President is a little near-sighted. He also uses reading glasses in his study to magnify slightly when reading.

"The President never has to be nagged," Dr. McIntire says. "He knows he should exercise. When I observe he is tired, and he knows it, he is willing enough to drop things, and go through his drill and a rub."

Manawa Buys Wood Lot To Employ Relief Workers

Manawa—Purchase of a wood lot in the village of Big Falls about 18 miles northwest of Manawa has been made by the local village board at a cost of $18. Relief workers were on the job felling trees at the lot last week but have been unable to make regular trips since the blizzard made road conditions impassable. The village also bought a used truck from the O. A. Hahn garage for $300 to be used in hauling logs now, and for other village work in the future.

Men working on the wood lot are paid at the rate of 30 cents an hour, half of which they receive in cash and the other half in fuel. The wood is hauled to Manawa in pole length, taken to the Mike Martin lot at the south end of the village, and will be "bucked up" by the workmen at a later date. Some six or eight men have thus far been employed at the lot. They are limited to a 40-hour work week.

F. R. Meiklejohn of this place has rented his garage at Iola to Corrin Mortenson of that village, who will take possession Feb. 1. Some of the stock has been removed to the Manawa garage. Mr. Mortenson will operate the Iola business as a direct agency for the Ford Motor company.

YOUR Income Tax

NORMAL TAX AND SURTAX RATES

The Revenue Act of 1936 provides for only one normal tax rate, that is, 4 per cent on the amount of the net income in excess of the allowable credits such as the personal exemption, credit for dependents, etc. The act provides for an additional credit for the purpose of the normal tax of an earned income credit, that is, 10 per cent of the amount of the earned net income but not in excess of 10 per cent of the amount of the net income. The personal exemption and credit for dependents are also allowable as credits against the net income for the purpose of the surtax, the resulting net income being designated "surtax net income." The surtax is imposed on surtax net incomes in excess of $4,000. The rates increase in accordance with the amount of surtax net income included in varying so-called surtax brackets. On a surtax net income of $4,000 or less there is no surtax. On a surtax net income in excess of $4,000 and not in excess of $6,000, the rate is 4 per cent of such excess. The surtax upon a surtax net income of $6,000 is $80 and upon a surtax net income in excess of $6,000 and not in excess of $8,000 the rate is 5 per cent of such excess in addition to the $80, for a surtax of $180 upon a surtax net income of $8,000. The surtax on a surtax net income of $5,000,000 is $3,591,000, and upon a surtax net income in excess of $5,000,000, 75 per cent, the maximum rate is applicable to such excess, in addition to the $3,591,000. Many taxpayers make the error of applying the maximum rate instead of the rate provided for in the bracket in which their surtax net income is included.

Following is an example of how to compute the tax on a net income of $8,500, all of which represents earned net income, the taxpayer being single and without dependents:

Net income	$8,500
Less personal exemption	1,000
Balance (surtax net income)	7,500
Earned income credit	850
Net income subject to normal tax	6,650
Surtax at 4 percent on amount of surtax net income in excess of $4,000 but not over $6,000, 4 percent on $2,000	80
Surtax at 5 percent on amount of surtax net income in excess of $6,000 but not over $8,000, 5 percent on $1,500	75
Total surtax	155
Normal tax, 4 percent on $6,650	266
Total normal tax and surtax	421

Taxpayers are advised to read carefully the instructions accompanying Form 1040 relating to the earned-income credit and surtax, as well as all other instructions thereon, before preparing their returns.

About $50 Realized at Waupaca Amateur Hour

Waupaca — "The Major Blow's Amateur Hour," premiere performance of WHS, "The Voice of the Chain o' Lakes," was the first effort of Waupaca High school students to aid in the expense incurred in the purchase of a public address system. More than thirty acts were presented before a fair sized audience Wednesday evening, talent coming from Amherst, Weyauwega, Wild Rose, Scandinavia and New London. Ralph Hafemeister acted as announcer and Tom Godfrey impersonated Major "Blows."

The first prize was awarded Miss Patricia Eagen, New London, for a vocal solo, "Sunbeams;" second prize went to little George Lillie for his imitations and third to "Whistling Rufus," John Bradley of Wild Rose. Three were given honorable mention by the judges. The Barnyard Opera of Amherst, Chalk Song, Wild Rose, and the Kitchen Band of Waupaca.

Net proceeds of approximately $50 will go toward the purchase price of $212 of the public address system—a combination radio-phonograph with loud speaker facilities that can be used for class auditions of addresses and debates, as a radio or phonograph for high school parties and for a number of other purposes.

Jackson Made Bad Slip at Hearing, Lawrence States

Overlooked Law on Powers of Justice Department, Writer Says

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—When a man is nominated to be solicitor general of the United States, it may be presumed that he is familiar with the laws of the land. Robert H. Jackson, who has just received that nomination from President Roosevelt, but has yet to be confirmed by the senate, has the reputation of being a good lawyer. But, for some reason or other, he made a bad slip when he appeared before the judiciary committee of the house of representatives this week, and now some members of the senate are wondering whether he is qualified for the job.

Lawrence

Mr. Jackson told the house committee there was no way the department of justice could get adequate evidence about anti-trust law violations unless it began criminal proceedings before a federal grand jury. But it turns out that there is a law on the statute books which supplies to the department of justice all the power it needs, and it is a mystery why Mr. Jackson overlooked that statute.

To begin with, here is a stenographic record of what was said before the house committee, where a hearing was being held to consider Mr. Jackson's informal impeachment of Judge Geiger of Milwaukee because the latter would not let the department of justice tamper with the grand jury while separately seeking to coerce the defendants to sign a civil decree. Representative Massingale, Democrat, Oklahoma, was doing the questioning as follows:

Quotes From Record

"As I understand your position about this grand jury evidence, the only effective way, from the government's standpoint, of getting evidence upon which it can proceed either criminally or by a suit in equity, is through the grand jury?"

"Mr. Jackson: That is right.

"Mr. Massingale: And that was the object in making the inquiry?

"Mr. Jackson: The department of justice has no power of subpena. We cannot compel the production of any evidence, except before the grand jury, and until you have got the evidence, you cannot know whether you have a case that ought to be prosecuted civilly or criminally."

Nobody in the committee happened to ask Mr. Jackson about it, but lawyers all over the country are wondering why Mr. Jackson is unfamiliar with the terms of Section 46 of the federal trade commission act, which reads as follows:

Provision of Act

"The federal trade commission shall also have power . . . upon the application of the attorney general to investigate and make recommendations for the readjustment of the business of any corporation alleged to be violating the anti-trust acts in order that the corporation may thereafter maintain its organization, management, and conduct of business in accordance with law."

The power of subpena which the federal trade commission has and which is available, therefore, to the department of justice, is far-reaching and has been upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. Here is section 49 of the same law, which reads as follows:

" . . . The commission, or its duly authorized agent, or agents, shall at all reasonable times have access to, for the purpose of examination, and the right to copy any documentary evidence of any corporation being investigated or proceeded against; and the commission shall have power to require by subpena the attendance and testimony of witnesses and the production of all such documentary evidence relating to any matter under investigation."

Question Statement

Mr. Jackson made another statement which is being widely challenged. He told the house committee this:

"I am quite confident that no consent decrees would ever be obtained, if you did not have the power of proceeding before the grand jury; and during the pendency of these cases, these conferences always occur."

Writing in the Harvard Law Review for April, 1933, William J. Donovan, who held from 1925 to 1929 tha same position in the department of justice that Mr. Jackson does, declared:

"The Sherman act has been on the statute books for 42 years. In its enforcement, consent decrees have always played an important part. About two hundred and thirty civil suits have been instituted by the United States under this act, and of these, one hundred and twelve were concluded by the entry of consent decrees. Fifty-five of these decrees were entered in the eight years from 1925 to 1932 inclusive."

It is a matter of common knowledge that criminal proceedings occurred in hardly any of these cases. Mr. Donovan went on to discuss the growing use of consent decrees, stating that it was a method of "law enforcement by negotiation." He called attention to the federal trade commission power quoted above and urged that more use be made of it. He said:

Provisions "Sufficient"

"These provisions of the federal trade commission act are sufficient, without more, to implement the attorney general in the consideration of economic questions, and if more is desired, the voluntary cooperation of the department of commerce and the department of labor should be available to him.

"It is believed that, if the use of available governmental facilities is established by the attorney general as a precedent in connection with the negotiation of important consent decrees, their economic aspects will be thrust in the forefront where they belong."

So the consent decree negotiation is an old process and there's power enough through the federal trade commission to get evidence without resorting to the coercive method of threatening or bringing criminal proceedings. Yet Mr. Jackson told the house committee that there was no effective way to get evidence and that the department of justice had to use compulsion and coercion. Small wonder that Senators King and Burke, both Democrats, want to question Mr. Jackson before voting on whether or not he should be confirmed to the office of solicitor general—the highest law officer of the prosecuting branch of the government of the United States.

Traffic Near Normal In Snowstorm Zones

Milwaukee—(AP)—Rail and highway traffic, disrupted by the snowstorm of Monday and Tuesday, was at or near normal in Wisconsin and upper Michigan today.

The Milwaukee Motor club reported Wisconsin roads were open, although there was only one-lane traffic on some in the north. Main federal and state routes in the Michigan peninsula were clear of drifts.

The Chicago and North Western railroad reported operations on all of its lines in this territory were back on schedule. Except for the line between Marquette and Big Bay, Mich., the Lake Superior and Ishpeming railroad also was again operating at normal.

Lights now fell last night at Sault Ste. Marie and Marquette, but traffic was not tied up. Snow, however, was forecast for upper Michigan some time today or tonight.

Hanging Mayor of Galway No Father of Lynch Rule

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—Charles Lynch, the Virginia judge and revolutionary colonel, whose excess of his authority in dealing with traitorous tories gave us the verb "to lynch," is said to have been a descendant of James Lynch Fitz-Stephen, the mayor of Galway ,who condemned his own son, Walter, to death for murder, and personally hanged him.

Thomas Walker Page, in an article on Charles Lynch in the Atlantic Monthly in 1901, wrote:—

Pegler

"There is a tradition that somewhere in the misty past one of his forefathers was mayor of a certain Irish city and meted out justice with so stern a hand as to earn the sobriquet 'hanging Pat'."

Hardiman's "History of Galway" records the incident but does not mention any relationship between the Irish mayor and the American Judge Lynch, although the father of Judge Lynch did come from Galway. It has been written that the verb "to lynch" descends from the severity of the Galway mayor, but that must be a mistake, for his conduct was in strict accordance with the law. In fact, he performed his duty in defiance of public outcry and at some risk of his own life, for Walter was a popular youth and the situation shocked the people.

Moreover, there is much data to show that the Virginia Judge Lynch gave rise to the term. He exceeded the law, and the legislature afterward adopted a resolution condoning his acts, thus admitting that in some circumstances it might be necessary to violate the law in the public interest. The legislature could not actually legalize illegal acts, but the members expressed a hope that their resolution would be accepted as an offset to any claims against Judge Lynch for damages.

Lynching Came to be Regarded as all Right

With this prestige, lynching came to be regarded as all right, even though unlawful, and as Mr. Page wrote, "The custom dies slowly." There were 130 lynchings in 1901, when he wrote his story, but there had been 231 only nine years before and last year there were only eight.

James Lynch Fitz-Stephen's personal code of justice probably was no more typical of high public officers in his time than of men who might find themselves similarly confronted today.

The mayor was a wealthy merchant trading with Cadiz, and on one voyage he invited the young son of a Spanish merchant named Gomez to visit him in Galway. Young Gomez was about the age of the mayor's son, Walter, and one night Walter thought he noticed something in the glance of his fiancee, Agnes, which indicated that the Spaniard was on the point of blighting his life. There was a lovers' quarrel, and the next night Walter observed the Spaniard leaving the home of his O. A. O. (or one and only), where he had gone to polish up her old man's Spanish —if you believe that. Walter didn't.

So Walter chased him down by the docks, shouting, "He shall die, tiddly-eye-tie!" and soon a shriek was heard in the night and a hat with a white plume went floating in the moonlight on the water.

Sat Up With Son as Comforter and Guard

Walter ran away and hid, but came out next day and ran into a posse led by his own father. The mayor foresaw, as Hardiman's "history" says, that should he shrink from his duty public disgrace awaited him, which is a humorously solemn view by comparison with the official morals of a day when a father's first thought in comparable conditions would be to ignore suspicions of questionable conduct by his son, prevent investigation, change the subject and find a position of public trust for him.

Mayor James Lynch Fitz-Stephen, with an honor that nowadays will appear to have been equally naive and brutal, with his own lips pronounced sentence of death on his boy and sat up with him throughout the night before the execution, in two characters. He wished to be present as the boy's father and comforter, but he was there as guard, also, to see that he shouldn't escape.

"He remembered," says Hardiman, "that already he had used his authority with rigid severity in the case of another," and he was determined that nobody should accuse him of giving a member of his own family preferred treatment.

The mayor spent the rest of his days in mourning and never showed his face again, but obviously it would be wrong to say that his conduct was the origin of the verb "to lynch." On the contrary, he would have been guilty of lynching only if he had failed to apply to his son the same treatment that he gave others.

"Don'ts" For Visitors at Hospital Listed by Staff

Visiting hours at St. Elizabeth hospital are from 2 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and from 7 to 8:30 in the evening and visitors have been asked by the hospital staff to make their visits during those hours.

The following "don'ts" drawn up by the staff for visitors are designed to help the patients, staff officials say.

It is better not to visit a surgical patient at all. A note or a letter will strengthen the friendship just as well, and strengthen the friend a good deal more. If a call must be made, it should be a short one. Five minutes is plenty, and make it at least three days after the operation.

Don't touch the patient's bed, and don't sit on it.

Don't talk about your troubles or the neighbor's illnesses. The patient has plenty of these two commodities.

Don't visit in groups of more than two or three at a time.

Don't wear heavy perfumes or send flowers with heavy fragrancies. Many patients find them nauseating.

Don't sit or stand where the patient is unable to see you except by arduous neck twisting.

Don't honk your automobile horn in front of the hospital. The person you want to see may be convalescent enough to come to the window, but the noise may bother many other patients, some of whom may be seriously ill and noise sensitive.

Don't bring children to the hospital if possible to avoid it. Sometimes the patient requests it. In that case don't let the children roam around the hall or wander into other patients' rooms and annoy them.

Dr. J. M. Canavan, Neenah, Jack Kimberly, Neenah, and William Kellett, Menasha, were named to make arrangements for the gathering of scouts.

Progressives to Renew Fight for U. S. Arms Plants

Would Nationalize Munitions Industry and Ban Private Manufacture

Washington — (AP) — Wisconsin Progressives, disputing contentions of American Legion officers the Hill-Sheppard universal draft bill would take the profits out of war, refused yesterday to unite in favor of the proposal.

In a heated discussion behind closed doors, the Progressives criticized the bill during the conference with Gil Stordock, Wisconsin state adjutant of the legion; James Burns, state legion service officer; Miss Cora Brown, auxiliary department secretary, all of Milwaukee, and Mrs. Harriett Haas, Ladysmith, Wis., national defense chairman of the legion auxiliary.

Emphasizing they stood unanimously for legislation that would take the profits out of war, the Progressive group contended that the committee report on the house version admits it would not universally conscript manpower for industry or the military, and did not contain any tax provision to prevent war profiteering.

Washington —(AP)—Wisconsin Progressives plan to launch another move to nationalize the munitions industry and outlaw private armament manufacture.

Representative Withrow (P-Wis.) will introduce a resolution, probably early next week, which will stipulate the government must cease purchase of armaments and munitions from private firms at a specified date some years in the future, probably about 1945.

Under the tentative terms of his proposal, the government must make provisions in the interim for producing its own munitions for definite needs. The effect of this plan would be, Withrow siad, ultimate abandonment of private munitions industry as such.

It is, he feels, a big step toward taking the profit out of war and minimizing the danger of involving this nation in conflicts of the future.

Wants Farmers Called

The president has been conferring with business and labor leaders on the current recession, Representative Hull (P-Wis.) remarks, but nothing has been said about calling farmers to air their views.

"Considering there are 7,000,000 hard-pressed farmers, of whom not more than 1,000,000 belong to policy-farming organizations," says Hull, "it would seem a lot could be learned about putting a foundation under real national prosperity by also consulting with them."

Wisconsin has added its voice to those of many other states objecting to any reduction in federal highway aid to the state. Thomas J. Pattison, secretary of the Wisconsin Highway commission, wrote to Wisconsin congressmen to say, "the 1939 federal aid is urgently needed in Wisconsin to complete the work which has already been undertaken."

The commission has planned to pave and complete 12 projects using 1939 federal aid funds and other money involving a total outlay of about $2,575,000. The total federal aid for 1939 would be $3,030,000, and all of it has been tentatively allocated, Pattison said.

Reduction in Jobs

"A decrease in the federal aid allotment would materially decrease the 1938 and 1939 highway construction in Wisconsin with a corresponding decrease in employment," he added.

"The decrease in total construction would be much greater than the amount of reduction in federal aid. The allotments to counties for state trunk highways have been allocated by the county boards and the state highway commission, and the county bonds have been authorized by referendum vote for specific projects.

"It is apparent that any appreciable decrease in the 1939 federal aid allotment would make it necessary to postpone the paving of the 12 projects previously graded, since without the federal aid the funds on any one project would not be sufficient to finance such a project."

Challenge to Duel

Representative O'Malley (D-Wis.) unintentionally provoked a challenge by Narciso Lapuz, former captain under Aguinaldo in the Philippines, for a duel with Quintin Paredes, resident commissioner of the Philippines here.

The cause is O'Malley's bill for Philippine independence. The resident commissioner had asked for a postponement of hearings on it. This prompted Lapuz to telegraph the commissioner:

"Opposition to O'Malley's resolution rank betrayal immediate independence. If you insist, will challenge you duel where permitted."

And Paredes replied: "Take friendly advice. Don't be again funny nor bluff me. Ain't opposing anything and will wait committee report. Take good care your health. Refusing answer. Foolish communication."

Former Governor Fails To Make Grade in Tests For Civil Service Jobs

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — Most trying jobs in Wisconsin this week, probably, are those held by officials of the state bureau of personnel, upon whom are descending the cries of chagrin and the dissappointed denunciations of hundreds of aspirants to state jobs who fell by the wayside in the recent civil service examinations for jobs in the beverage tax division conducted by the bureau.

Examiners and other employes of the office continued wearily today the tremendous task of completing the examinations, which totaled 10,000, and in answering the critical questions of hundreds who "flunked" in the tests, held over the last several months. Some of the candidates who failed will take court action against the bureau, they have announced.

Mortality in the tests was terrific. For the jobs of inspector, for example, more than 3,000 hopefuls wrote examinations, but only a little more than 200 passed. Among them were two officers who a few months back were fired by Sol Levitan, then head of the division, for "conduct unbecoming an officer." They are Walter Denning of Oshkosh, and Joseph Deuster of Green Bay, who placed fourth and eleventh, respectively, and who will be certified for their old jobs.

A. J. Opsteadal, chief examiner for the bureau, explained that their discharge will not affect their chances for rehiring, for there is no record in the civil service files of their previous records, because of the lack of civil service status of the department to date.

Because of the change in the state laws granting preference in examination grades to war veterans, it is estimated that 80 per cent of the present staff of the division, despite their higher written exams, will be eliminated. Under the new law veterans are automatically granted five points free on their examination papers, while a disabled veteran, under a 1937 amendment, gets 10 points added to his grade. As a result about 50 of the 100 jobs in the division will go to veterans.

Former Governor Fails

Among the fatalities was S. A. Woldenburg, author of the recent sensational bribe charges in the department, charges which were subsequently dropped, who placed fourth in the examination for chief enforcement officer, the position he has held since the election of Sol Levitan, who appointed most of the present employes of the division.

Another was former Governor Fred R. Zimmerman, now employed as an inventory clerk in the division, who failed to receive a high enough grade to be certified and who will as a consequence shortly lose his job. In the exams the former chief executive placed 38th on the list for inventory clerk, and 12th for chief inventory clerk.

After months of wrangling and procrastination of the 1937 legislature last July ordered the beverage division, most notorious "pie counter" in the capitol, to be classified under the civil service laws. Today, seven months later, it is hoped that the department will become so sometime in February.

Snow Is Predicted For City, Vicinity

Thermometer Registers 17 Above Zero at Noon Today

Snow tonight and Sunday for Appleton and vicinity is the forecast issued by the weather bureau at Milwaukee today.

Most of Appleton's streets and county roads have been opened but traffic still is being hampered by snow piled high at the curbs and roadsides. City workmen were clearing snow from College avenue and had almost completed the task this afternoon.

The forecast for Wisconsin is rain or snow in the extreme southeast portion tonight and somewhat colder in west and south portions Sunday.

At noon today the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 17 above. During the 24-hour period preceding 9 o'clock this morning the lowest mark in the city was 5 above and the highest 17 above, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan power plant.

Phoenix, Ariz., reported 74 degrees yesterday, warmest in the nation, and Harve reported 4 degrees below.

Named Director for Disabled Association

Mrs. S. C. Shannon, 705 E. College avenue, was named to the board of directors of the Wisconsin Association for the Disabled by delegates attending the twelfth annual convention at Milwaukee yesterday, S. F. Shattuck, Neenah, also was named a director.

Other officers elected were: George Howitt, Milwaukee, president; John Calahan, Madison, vice president; R. L. Cooley, Milwaukee, second vice president; W. I. Cole, Fond du Lac, treasurer; W. F. Faulkes, Madison, secretary; John Cundy, Marshfield, Philip Kirch, LaCrosse, Cole and Faulkes, directors.

It Is Said--

That the pet peeve of residents this week was the re-shoveling of driveways. It seemed that just about the time a person got his driveway shoveled out, a road plow would move by and push about two or three feet of heavily packed snow across it. However, most agreed that it was better than not having the street opened at all.

That prisoners at the Outagamie county jail must keep the quarters clean. Usually one prisoner is given charge of the cleaning work and it is his job to see that the others do their share of the work. During the cleaning yesterday one prisoner, a vagrant who was not getting along very well with his work of cleaning the ceiling, was told by the "foreman" just how long the task was going to take.

"I ain't signed no contract," was the reply.

That an injured pigeon alighted in the right spot yesterday morning when employes at the Appleton Chamber of Commerce offices noticed it on a window sill and coaxed it inside. The bird was placed on the top of a cabinet, fed, and it stayed there the remainder of the day and through the night. This morning a home was found for the bird.

Consider Link With Highway 41

City County Officials Discuss Southwestern Outlet for Appleton

Mayor John Goodland, Jr., council member and members of the Appleton Chamber of Commerce road committee attended a joint meeting with the special Highway 125 committee of the county board at the courthouse yesterday afternoon to discuss a southwestern outlet for Appleton and link with Superhighway 41. The meeting was called by Thomas J. Long, chairman of the county board special committee, and attended by V. L. Fiedler, associated with the division engineer's office at Green Bay of the state highway department. Frank Appleton represented the county highway commission.

Fiedler submitted estimates of cost for different types and combination of types of improvement on three different locations.

City officials and chamber of commerce representatives endorsed a route from Haskell street and parallel to the Chicago and North Western railway tracks which involved one-half mile of new pavement within the city limits and .84 of a mile ot the Winnebago county boundary line. They contended that repairing the present highway would not eliminate existent hazards.

The special county board committee will meet next week to prepare a recommendation to the county board.

Advertises for Owner Of Runaway Trailer

Milwaukee — (AP) — Found: one trailer.

W. H. Busse, Jr., who inserted the advertisement in a Milwaukee newspaper explained:

The two-wheeled vehicle broke loose from its tow car on a road near here yesterday. The car kept going. The trailer rolled into the path of Busse's machine. He and other motorists pulled it to the roadside and waited for the owner's return. No one showed up, so Busse took possession.

The following real estate transfer was recorded today at the office of A. L. Collar, Outagamie county register of deeds:

RESIGNS

L. Hugo Keller, formerly of Appleton, has resigned as second assistant United States attorney, it was announced at Milwaukee. The resignation was forced by ill health.

Keller Resigns From U. S. Office

Quits Job as Second Assistant Attorney Because of Ill Health

Milwaukee —(AP)— The resignation of L. Hugo Keller as second assistant United States attorney here, was announced today.

B. J. Husting, the United States attorney to whom the resignation was submitted, today sent to the attorney general the name of Carl Becker, of Milwaukee, as Keller's successor.

Keller resigned because of ill health. A second lieutenant in the Rainbow division in the World war, Keller has been under treatment at the soldiers' home here since Wednesday.

Pleads Not Guilty to Charge of Vagrancy

Walter C. Wolf pleaded not guilty of vagrancy when he appeared in municipal court before Judge Thomas H. Ryan this morning. Trial was set for 9 o'clock next Saturday morning. Bond was set at $200 but had not been furnished up to noon today. He was arrested by city police.

Ship Radiomen Ask Special Pay for Sending Weather Data When Off-Duty

San Francisco —(AP)— Ship's radiomen today demanded special pay for relaying offshore weather information outside of working hours.

Their representatives here said they would ask the operators mean while to resume transmitting the vital reports for worried weather forecasters.

Curtailment of the reports Thursday and their virtual stoppage up to 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday led to a conference between officials of the American Radio Telegraphists association and the United States weather bureau, which had experienced difficulty in compiling forecasts.

From information relayed by the ships, many of them small vessels carrying only one radio operator, Pacific coast weather forecasts are made and the probable course of Pacific disturbances as far east as the Mississippi are charted.

Federal meteorologist Major E. H. Bowie said that in the 24 hours preceding 4 o'clock p. m. yesterday he had received no weather information from ships between here and the 180th meridian, over 3,500 miles westward. Lack of data on weather between here and Hawaii held the Pan American flying boat, Hawaii clipper, at Alameda.

After a two-hour closed conference at the weather bureau, Roy Pyle, A. A. T. A. secretary, said he would request radiomen to resume relaying the data, while he sought a meeting between his organization, the carriers and the weather bureau looking toward compensation for operators on one-man ships for relaying weather information outside of regular duty hours.

Pyle explained that in order to transmit the ship's morning observations, the radiomen would have to be on duty at 4 a. m., while their regular eight-hour shift did not start until several hours later.

The situation does not exist on larger vessels, which have more than one operator to maintain watch around the clock.

Pittman and Sheppard Observe Their 25th Anniversary as Senate Members

Washington —(AP)— Senator Pittman (D-Nev.) and Senator Sheppard (D-Texas) swapped reminiscences today on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their entrance into the senate and agreed it is an abler body now than in the "old days."

"The general level of ability has improved," chorused the tall, gaunt Nevadan and the diminutive, soft-spoken Texan.

Both took their seats on Jan. 29, 1913—each elected to serve unexpired terms. They have served continuously since. Pittman is president pro tempore and chairman of the foreign relations committee. Sheppard is chairman of the committee on military affairs.

"Let me put it this way, Shep," said Pittman. "The makeup of the senate is different from when we entered. The direct vote has resulted in younger senators. Young men, generally speaking, are more impulsive and more active than their elders.

"They seek to accomplish things faster, but possibly not with the same experience and mature deliberation. This has led to the assertion that earlier senates were composed of greater men. It is not true."

"I agree with you," said Sheppard. "A careful study of the senate debates of today will discuss that they compare favorably with those of the so-called good old days."

Both senators declared that had they not been reminded this was their twenty-fifth anniversary they probably would have forgotten it.

Sheppard said that probably his greatest thrill in the 25 years came when President Wilson delivered his historic war message. He said unhesitatingly that he regards as his outstanding achievement, authorship of the eighteenth amendment to the constitution.

iPttman said his greatest thrill was "coming to the senate under the administration of a great man like Woodrow Wilson and being privileged to associate with those whom I had read about and admired for years."

WHEN THE "GALLED JADE" LUNGES

The curious effect of politics upon men becomes most evident when a man of great drive, force and character like Mr. Ickes drops himself down into the class of roustabout arguments because he must figure that they are what the public demands.

In a world in which a free press is little known, so little known that only about 10 per cent of the people on the globe have its advantages, Mr. Ickes shouts the shrill warning that "our press and news agencies are coming more and more under the domination of a handful of corporate publishers."

Mr. Ickes was aiming at the power of propaganda, particularly political propaganda, and became severest in denouncing "propaganda indulged in for the purpose of creating a false impression with respect to their government." He added:

> "To speak bluntly and realistically the first requirements for a better understanding between business and government is for Big Business to call off its lobbyists, call off its newspapers and commentators, call off its lawyers."

Moreover Mr. Ickes was acid in his reference to "certain kept newspapers and kept commentators."

But when we look around us and analyze the facts as carefully as the chaff may be blown out of the grain, we conclude that Mr. Ickes means by "kept newspapers" those that have been most critical of Mr. Ickes and his associates. There is something about our political life that makes men in important positions often intolerant of opposition and extreme in their denunciation of criticism, believing as they must that there can be no honest criticism.

When we talk about American newspapers, as when we discuss the status of a free press in the world, we may to advantage consider some statistics. We have over 2,000 daily newspapers in the United States. There are also thousands of weekly papers. And magazines that devote pages to political subjects actually clutter up when they do not clog the aisles in news depots.

Thus there is presented a broad and immense river of information and misinformation, some of it containing a little sewage it is true but most of it, as Mr. Ickes well knows, originating in clear springs.

But, talking about propaganda, can Mr. Ickes be ignorant of the fact that the government itself is the greatest propagandizing agency in the country? It has sent out so much by way of propaganda to newspapers that they could hardly wade through the documents to say nothing about printing them all. Some of its departments are as partisan, as feverish and as furious as the Moscow Pravda when ordered to write up a good alibi for all the coagulated blood in the cellars. This state of affairs does not justify an answer in kind but it does detract from the lily white garment that Mr. Ickes assumes to wear.

And Big Business has a right to be represented by lobbyists, too; in fact it must sometimes in order to save itself from extinction. Getting down to a wrestler's grip on this very subject we might inquire of Mr. Ickes if he thought we ever had a meeting of a legislative body in a populous state in this country where bills were not specifically introduced with the expectation by those who introduced them to be bought off? Does Mr. Ickes want Big Business to buy off these corrupt legislators or use legislative agents to show how wretched are the reasons behind some of these measures in order that the majority of legislators may draw their own conclusions as to why the bills were introduced.

The press of America is not venal and there is no good reason to insinuate or charge that it is. It is not in the hands of great interests since out of the 2,000 dailies in the country no more than 25 are held by any one group although an organization like Mr. Hearst's has a number of papers with unusually large subscription lists. Our present method of legislation is often noisy and confusing, not because lobbyists and lawyers for business and labor are present but because the affairs of state have become so extensive that the capital is like Bablyon of old, a jumble of voices and men and measures.

THE COMMON ENEMY OF MANKIND

When Germany and Japan signed a compact against communism the Soviets were neither lowered or disgraced in American eyes. Perhaps they were even helped a bit in general public opinion.

When, a year later, Italy joined the Anti-Communist pact, world opinion did not become particularly fluttered. Rather did the people in democracies consider that birds of a feather had flocked together, and the birds were considered hawks even though their ach enemy was a buzzard.

But recently there has been another bloc movement among the Scandinavian nations which is likely to make the impartial opinion of the world cement against Russia in more deadly and menacing fashion than ever.

Socialist Swedish statesmen have been advocating a defensive military union to include Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland. And recently Finland welcomed the opportunity to discuss the features of such a compact.

The Scandinavian countries are particularly democratic and peaceful. We know them as honest nations always paying their way. They are not centers of massed wealth but they present the hospitable abodes made possible by an intelligent democracy built upon work and honor.

The fact that heretofore even the Socialist regime of Sweden has favored an isolationist policy in respect to Russia is particularly significant. If the Scandinavian nations follow the presently suggested plan of fortifying the Aland Islands and establishing there a powerful air base it will not be because they have any hostility against the Russian land but that they have concluded from experience and the close observation of touching elbows with the Soviets that Moscow's word is utterly worthless and that her policy is dictated by as mad an ambition as ever actuated Ivan the Terrible—the ruler who choked to death his own son.

AN EARLY SAMPLE OF BUREAUCRACY

The Bituminous Coal Commission set a price of $2.15 a ton for locomotive fuel in the Peoria-Fulton coal district of Illinois.

This is the same price set by the Commission for Eastern coal.

As a result the Illinois district is threatened with a loss of contracts totaling about a million tons of coal annually.

The power to fix prices reposed in the Commission is, as we see, the power to destroy. But the eastern seaboard isn't destroyed. Eastern utilities are not destroyed. Eastern interests are protected to the hilt.

Before the day of the Bituminous Coal Commission the price for locomotive fuel in the Eastern field ran about $2.05 a ton at the mines. In the Illinois field it averaged about $1.85 a ton. Eastern coal was in fact better for fuel purposes. On account of the location of the mines it was handier than the Illinois coal. Those reasons provided the natural differential in rates. As a result the eastern fields secured what might be called their share of the business and the Illinois fields theirs.

We pass over the claim that the Commission has been worked by CIO in the interests of its mining children and because the Illinois miners are not friendly to Mr. Lewis' method of buying influence with the administration. There is no evidence to support the charge that the administration secured this holding from the Commission in order to reward Mr. Lewis. Although from what the world knows about bureaucracies—of which Tammany is the outshining American example—we wouldn't be surprised that the charge be true.

The fact remains that thousands of men can be put out of a job when some supercilious gentlemen on a commission come to some sort of a conclusion urged to that end by influences and persons and mental shortcomings impossible to gauge with correctness.

The trouble with this commission is that instead of fixing prices the same it should make the coal the same in all fields. If it did prices would take care of themselves.

UNANIMOUS SUPPORT OF THE PRESIDENT

Mr. Roosevelt has been very considerate in the matter of the selection of his birthday.

Hardly a better time could be found for a nationwide gala ball.

Had the President been born in July or August with the thermometer at 100 in the shade how could he have asked even our gay young blades to dance in such a temperature?

But in January when the winds howl and the snows pile high and a crowded ballroom has a friendly and homelike appearance and the music calls for something fast and dashing then dancing has become as much a setting of the day as a noble spruce at Christmastime.

Nowhere have we seen any criticism of Mr. Roosevelt for his birthday. It is elevating and ennobling to find that we can all agree on something.

SOMEHOW, I picked up a paper from a year ago this week and looked over the front page — queer, what has happened since then . . . the army was preparing to evacuate people along a 1,000 mile stretch of the Mississippi River while at Louisville, things were in a terrible way because of the rampaging Ohio river . . . the sitdown strikes were in progress and Madame Perkins was telling the reporters nothing, as usual . . . at a Russian trial it was brought out that war with Japan was "inevitable" in 1937 . . . that was half right . . . Japan is warring, anyway . . . the former Kaiser passed his seventy-eighth birthday . . . and he just had his seventy-ninth . . . remember what they said and sang about him twenty years ago? . . .

And money came all in a bunch,
Would not be in owning a palatial yacht,

We ARE a Lady:

Ever since as far back as we can remember, folks have always been admonishing us to "sit like a lady," or to "speak like a lady," or, at least to try to "act like a lady." Now, at long last, Jonah ups and tells Dusty and the readers at large that we ARE a lady. Hereafter, just let admonishers say another word and they will get Jonah's nice words about us waved beneath and in front of their meddlesome, fault-finding noses. Thank you, Jonah, thank you!

TO DUSTY

Dusty, I wish I could tell you
The things you are asking to know —
"Was I child just yesterday
Or a long, long time ago?"

You ask me my age and my history —
Nothing have I to conceal,
But your questions are hard to answer
For I am as old as I feel.

Some days I am gray and decrepit,
With tottering steps and slow,
But today I'm a small child asking
For tales of the long ago.

Or, haply, a fair young maiden
Awaiting her armored knight
With plum'ed steed and burnished shield
And courage high and bright.

How old may I be tomorrow,
The morrow alone can reveal;
What matter the years and the birthdays
When I'm only as old as I feel?

—Mrs. G. W.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

HIS NATURE WAS A WINTRY ONE

His nature was a wintry one . . .
The bleak forbidding ground
Cradles the roses. . . . When the sun
Discovers them, close-bound
In snowy fastness, to release
Their fragrance on the Springtime air,
The devastating winds will cease;
There will be beauty everywhere.

His nature was a wintry one.
And when he lay, so cold and still,
With his soul's pilgrimage begun,
We saw the line of a firm will
In his strong chin. . . . We knew the beat
Of his proud heart was done, and woe
Was lightened as we glimpsed the sweet
Warm rose of faith beneath the snow.

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

SMOKE GETS IN YOUR ARTERIES

Discussing the effects of tobacco on the circulation, Dr. D. G. Chapman remarks, in Virginia Medical Monthly for November, 1937, that records have not shown an increase in the incidence of peptic ulcer with increased smoking among females. Smoking, however, is an exciting factor in thrombo-angiitis obliterans, if not a cause, Dr. Chapman observes.

Four years ago I warned young women about excessive indulgence in tobacco. In this column sometime ago I said:

"Far be it from me to wish to frighten anybody unless there is good and sufficient reason for it. I have already intimated that in my opinion the temperate or moderate use of tobacco by an adult does not necessarily injure health, and in any event it is not more harmful to a woman than it is to a man. Now I warn young women smokers to look to their legs. Even if the legs are not of the kind that give your portrait front page position, just think what a bore it would be to have one of 'em cut off above the ankle."

A good many young adults who have smoked excessively for a few years have to have a leg amputated eventually from thrombo-angiitis obliterans. Heretofore the victims have been exclusively, so far as I can learn, males. But from the way many young women abuse tobacco, now that they make no bones of smoking anywhere and everywhere, one fears quite a few of them will lose a leg in due course.

A person developing thrombo-angiitis obliterans, after a few years of excessive smoking, begins to suffer with cold feet and cold legs, intermittent limping, then blueness and swelling of the feet, with steadily increasing pain. In some cases this goes on to actual gangrene, necessitating amputation.

Dr. Champman reminds us that the tobacco smoke is composed of many ingredients, such as nicotine, pyridine and its derivatives, carbon monoxide, various aldehydes, hydrocyanic (prussic) acid, methyl (wood) alcohol, a volatile oil and even a small amount of arsenic. Take your pick as to which of these components of tobacco smoke is responsible for the effects.

The local effect of tobacco smoke is irritation of the mucous membrane lining mouth, nose, throat, larynx and broncial tubes. More or less local irritation of the lining of esophagus, stomach and intestinal tract is due to the swallowed saliva.

Tobacco smoke causes constriction of the walls of the smallest blood vessels in the mucous membranes and other soft tissues, slowing of blood flow and hence interference with the nutrition of the tissues. Dr. Chapman suggests that this is an important factor in the causations and treatment of troubles involving the gums and teeth.

Right here I would advise smokers who smoke too much at night, then suffer with cold feet and insomnia, that they had better give their arteries a break before the functional disturbance becomes organic disease.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
Carbon Monoxide

Noticed you said carbon monoxide is not a poison. Beg to inform you carbon monoxide is a poison—it is the deadly poisonous gas in automobile exhaust? (M.W.)

Answer—Carbon monoxide is not a poison. Its deadly effects are due wholly to the fact that it crowds oxygen out of the blood and tissues. It requires inhalation of air polluted with a very small proportion of carbon monoxide to interfere seriously or even fatally with the oxygenation of blood and tissues. The damage or death in carbon monoxide gassing is due to anoxia—lack of oxygen. This is explained in detail in booklet "How to Breathe," copy of which will be mailed on request, if you provide ten cents coin and a three-cent stamped envelope bearing your address.

Loose Cartilage in Knee

Is operation advisable for relief of loose cartilage in knee? (E.T.B.)

Answer—Yes, it is the only permanent relief. The operation under modern surgical asepsis does not leave any stiffness that the lesion itself has not caused.

Your Birthday

"AQUARIUS"

If January 30 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:15 to 11:15 a. m.; from 2:15 to 4:15 p. m., and from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:15 to 9:15 a. m.; from 4:15 to 6:15 p. m., and from 9:15 to 11:15 p. m.

You may do all the planning you wish to this day, but destiny, in all likelihood, will work out what will ultimately be best for you. Keep your chin up and face the world unafraid, for any honest endeavor on your part probably will meet with a reward that is apt to more than compensate for worries you have endured. Tricksters and charlatans may succeed in the game of life this day, only to discover a little later that Fate has taken a hand and stacked the cards for their eventual discomfiture. Be above board in all your dealings with other people, if you wish to avoid complications. Social activities ought to be indulged in this day, for contacts through them are likely to prove helpful in many ways. Married and engaged couples, as well as those seriously in love, should avoid appearing secretive or in a non-communicative mood, if they expect the day to be enjoyable for them.

If a woman and January 30 is your birthday, you ought to have sufficient dignity to command a great amount of respect. There is a place in commercial or artistic activities for you, that might enable you to win both fame and fortune. You must be very careful in forming any kind of a partnership because comparatively few of them work out thoroughly satisfactorily for people born on this date, with the exception of the life-partnerships of martimony. Through work of a professional nature, art, selling, writing or teaching your progress is apt to be rapid.

The child born on January 30 should be given every educational advantage that is possible, for it will be through intellect rather than brawn that success will come to it early in life.

If a man and January 30 is your natal day, if you will let the mistakes you have made in the past, serve as lessons in the future, you are likely to bask in the smiles of fortune. As a jurist, literary man, publisher, printer, builder, politician, painter, musician or actor your advancement in all likelihood, will be gratifying.

Successful People Born on January 30:

Franklin D. Roosevelt, president of the U. S.
Frank G. Johnson, inventor.
Samuel C. Armstrong, soldier and educator.
John M. Maisch, pharmacist and author.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York — There is one actress on Broadway, a pretty creature, who instinctively is able to tell whether a play is going to succeed or fail. Several months ago she was cast in the lead of a drama that seemed headed for a big run on Broadway. There was plenty of money behind it. The designers gave it a magnificent setting. The cast was a superb one.

Several days before opening she decided to leave the cast. "Don't be foolish," her manager pleaded. "This is going to be the hit of the town." But she had her way, sacrificing, supposedly, a small fortune in salary. Then the play opened, and ran through just four performances.

Several seasons ago, before Ziegfeld, Carroll, and White were through tossing rival musicals on the stage, and taking pot-shots at each other from ambush, the "chorus" was the thing. The girls were stunningly beautiful and the tunes were catchy: as for their costumes — alas, they were left more to the imagination than anything else. This state of affairs caused Harry McNaughton in one of his airy moments, to flip: "Broadway musical comedies have a lot of good ideas, but they don't wear many clothes."

However, the current crop of musicals shows a trend, albeit a slight one, back to the heavier drapery idea. The gals, in spots, are pretty nude, but there are no such wholesale brevities as characterized the earlier school of musical comedy. Too, musical plays with much plot are mostly hit and miss propositions. Broadway apparently has grown tired of operettas. Thirteen years ago "The Student Prince" and "The Vagabond King" were stunning successes; today their reception would hardly be more than polite.

Al Shean, the loveable little monk of "Father Malachy's Miracle," is a star on Broadway at 70. But in his family 70 makes him barely a juvenile. His father, a magician, lived to be 101.

With "Amphitryon 38" such a hit in New York, Lynn Fontanne will probably have to give up her trip to Europe. Her idea of fun is rough ing it in the Alps or fishing for bass in some of those sylvan lakes where the mountains are reflected like techni-color photographs in the water.

Joe Cook has reopened his home, Sleepless Hollow, on the shores of Lake Hopatcong. This is the screwball palace of the universe, where the butler throws your coat out the window into a hole-in-one. There, too, you play the slot machines and the host furnishes the nickles. If you hit the jackpot you keep the change, but any left-over nickles should be turned in.

Hopatcong is that beautiful, wild looking lake about 53 miles from New York. For years Rex Beach had a summer home there. It is 10 miles long and its shoreline is a lace-work of tiny bays, inlets, and craggy points. True fishing for pickerel and bass is excellent, but the motorboats ars so numerous that they frequently give fisherman in small skiffs the jitters. If hardened piscators succumb in this manner, think how the poor fish must feel.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington—So thoroughly deadlocked are the conflicting factions in congress over the wage-hour bill that, at most, only half a bill may come through this session.

The house threw it back into committee in spite of intense administration pressure to salvage it, and there it lies, with labor divided on it, congress split wide and the President the only force solidly back of it.

But stout adherents of the bill are working without excess ballyhoo to frame something that congress can understand quickly, study a bit more calmly and perhaps accept.

The present bill, in general terms, requires that any products moving in interstate commerce must have been produced by labor getting at least 40 cents an hour and working no more than 40 hours a week.

Compromise Bill Due

The south opposes it. The south's principal bid for new industry is its supply of cheap labor. Without that to offer the south has little to tempt northern factories, particularly spinning mills, to move southward.

A compromise half-bill is being drafted which Senator Thomas, of Utah, chairman of the senate labor committee, hopes may eliminate much of the resistance to the old bill.

The new measure, not yet finally shaped, simply provides that 40-cent wages must be paid, and eliminates entirely any reference to hours.

If the congressional labor committees finally accept such a measure it will mark the second recession made in the bill since first it was introduced. As first drafted it proposed to give the federal government a hand over all labor, high paid and low, a jurisdiction which stirred both labor and industry to panic.

Spinning Not Exempted

Much of the storm was abated when its scope was limited to industries paying less than 40 cents an hour and working their employes longer than 40 hours a week. That action exempted such industries as steel, railroads, mining and many another.

It did not exempt spinning, where prevailing wages seem to be under the 40-cent bracket, particularly in the south.

The theory back of the compromise measure is that if a 40-cent minimum wage is fixed, the south will not be in such a powerful position to induce spinning mills to leave New England. On the other hand, New England mills, because of more skillful labor, better shipping facilities, and long established business, can offer its labor good hours and a better wage and still compete with the long-hour labor of the south.

The framers of the new bill also are trying to get along without the aid of such legal technicians as Tommy Corcoran and Ben Cohen. These two attempted to draft the original wage-hour bill, to get around the many supreme court decisions on the subject.

The new draftsmen, faced by a court deemed likely to look more pleasantly upon "liberal" legislation, are weeding out all the defense paragraphs, simplifying language and clarifying aims.

Six Manawa Students Enrolled Under NYA

Manawa—Six Manawa High school students are enrolled in the NYA. These people are working to help in paying for their books, clothing, and transportation to continue their high school education. They are responsible for many improvements and jobs that would not be completed if it were not for this federal aid. At the beginning of the year they installed additional desks in the assembly room, repaired and refinished some of the school furniture. They have cleaned the walks, stairways and halls of the building. Football equipment has been cleaned and mended. These students also keep a record of the school events in a scrap book. Near the end of the first semester an inventory of the library was taken.

Boys physical education classes at Manawa High school are restricted to freshmen and sophomores during the winter months because of the facilities at hand. Most of the boys have been playing volleyball or cage ball during the regular periods. Some of them spend the time wrestling or boxing. A hockey game was played Wednesday between students from the towns of Little Wolf and Union, with the former winning. Due to weather conditions the hockey schedule has been disrupted, but will be resumed on regular time next week when the rink will again be scraped and flooded.

Warner Addresses Group At Maple Corner School

Maple Creek — A number of farmers attended the seventh of a series of educational talks given weekly by Leonard Warner, agricultural teacher, at the Maple Corner school each Thursday evening. This week talk was on "Control of Bang's Disease." Next Thursday evening Mr. Warner will talk on "Testing of Milk."

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stoehr entertained neighbors and friends Thursday evening. Four tables of schafskopf were in play, high scores going to Mrs. Sadie Hutchison and Harvey Hebbe. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dahms, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Hebbe, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hebbe, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Hutchison, Mr. and Mrs. William Hutchison, Mr. and Mrs. William Spence, Mrs. Sadie Hutchison and son Leslie, and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Frank.

WOULD END LEGISLATURES

Spokane, Wash. — (AP) — Mayor Frank G. Sutherlin of Spokane believes the state legislature should be abolished and power vested in an elected commission. Citing the success of commission government in Spokane, he asserts millions of dollars annually could be saved by applying the same system to the state.

'High Flyers' Is Coming to Rialto

Wheeler and Woolsey Rise To New Comic Heights In RKO Picture

With unique complications to agitate their traditionally harassed film lives, Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey rise to new comic heights in "High Flyers," their latest RKO radio picture at the Rialto next Thursday and Friday.

The story, a screen adaptation of Victor Mapes' stage comedy, "The Kangaroos," is ideally suited to the special talents of the pair and the large cast of favorites who appear with them. These supporting players include Lupe Velez and Marjorie Lord, who share leading lady honors; Jack Carson, Margaret Dumont, Charles Judels, Herbert Evans, Lucien Prival, Paul Harvey and a host of others.

The second feature is "Fight For Your Lady," a picture already hailed by pre-view audiences as one of the season's most amusing and original films, comes to the screen of the Rialto Theatre in Kaukauna in the near future. It is a comedy romance which scintillates with fast action and big-laugh episodes.

This show stars John Boles, Jack Oakie, with Ida Lupino and Margaret Graham.

Ohio Village Built For 'Benefits Forgot'

A unique souvenir of California's pioneer days serves in a drama that relives the primitive period before the Civil war. It is the ninety year old two-seated wagon driven by Walter Huston and Beulah Bondi, on location at Lake Arrowhead, in "Benefits Forgot," a drama of the days of the pioneer Mid-west, which will be shown at the Appleton Theatre for 4-days starting Saturday, Feb. 12.

"Benefits Forgot" is the story of a circuit rider in a small village on the Ohio River before the Civil War, and his family. Walter Huston plays Wilkins, the preacher, Miss Bondi his wife, and James Stewart their son, who during the Civil War becomes a great surgeon, forgets his family, and whose feet are returned to the right path by Abraram Lincoln.

An entire Ohio village, with a dock, and an old paddle-wheeled river steamer, were constructed on the northern shore of Lake Arrowhead for the picture. Lumber, equipment, and a complete electrical plant were trucked over the "Rim of the World" road, then carried by boats across the lake.

There are fifty buildings, including church, general store, blacksmith shop, residences, the preacher's home, warehouse, horse market and other structures. Fences made of rough-hewn logs, with pointed ends projecting at intervals to prevent cattle from breaking it down, winding roads, plantings of corn, cabbage, pumpkins, and other produce; herds of cattle, horses, pigs and sheep, dogs, poultry, and pigeons were installed on the property. The work was performed in eight days by a crew of one hundred men.

The cast also includes Charles D. Coburn, Guy Kibbee, Gene Lockhart, Ann Rutherford and Charley Grapewin.

The second feature, "Love on Toast," is a romance served with wisecracks . . . topped with laughs. Stella Ardler and John Payne head the cast which includes Grant Richards, Katherine Kane, Benny Baker and Isabel Jewell.

Romantic Comedy to Be Shown at Rialto

Glowing with tempestuous romance, which blooms against the gay background of Budapest, and sparkling with the wit which has lifted Mischa Auer and Frank Jenks into the top flight of comedians, Universal's "Prescription For Romance" comes to the Rialto Theatre next Tuesday for a two day run.

The associate feature shows Sir Cedric Hardwicke, whose most recent film is the Gaumont production of Rider Haggard's novel, "King Solomon's Mines," completed a few months in the "flesh," appearing on Boardway in "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." Nevertheless, he is definitely committed to motion pictures.

Other stars include Roland Young, Anna Lee, John Loder and Paul Robeson.

CO-STAR IN 'DOUBLE WEDDING'

Mr. and Mrs. Thin Man are back again in another uproarious comedy hit. This time the famous William Powell-Myrna Loy co-starring team makes its appearance in "Double Wedding," an adaptation of the Ferenc Molnar continental stage success, "Great Love," the new picture will be shown at the Elite Theatre for 3 days starting next Wednesday.

'Hollywood Hotel' on Now at Rio Theater

Everyone in the United States possessed of a radio has undoubtedly heard that big weekly broadcast called "Hollywood Hotel," supposedly originating from an immense and luxurious hostelry in the capital of Filmland, which has been the most popular air program for the last three years.

And now "Hollywood Hotel," in the form of a musical comedy, is now playing at the Rio Theatre. It is not merely an episode entertainment, like its namesake of the ether-waves, but a fully-plotted dramatic show with a star-studded cast.

Dick Powell has the most important part — that of a young crooner who comes to Hollywood with promises of a movie job, and gets into all sorts of difficulties before he wins success.

The Lane sisters, Lola and Rosemary, have the leading feminine roles, the former as a temperamental movie star who refuses to appear at a premiere, and the latter as a totally obscure hotel worker who takes Lola's part on the big night.

Louella Parsons, famed dramatic critic and originator of the "Hollywood Hotel" air show, plays herself in the picture, acting as mistress of ceremonies and introducing a great number of stars to her audience in the famed "Orchid Room."

Among the bevy of funmakers who have important roles are Hugh Herbert, Ted Healy, Glenda Farrell, Johnnie ("Scat") Davis, Alan Mowbray, Mabel Todd, Allyn Joslyn, Grant Mitchell, Frances Langford and Edgar Kennedy.

Then, too, there are Benny Goodman's Band and Raymond Paige's orchestra. What swing fan could ask for more?

A combination of thrills and laughs and romance is the Warner Bros. mystery-melodrama "The Invisible Menace," which is the added feature on the same program.

The picture — made from the successful Broadway stage play of the same name — deals with a murder in a governmental arsenal, and cuts away, part of the time, to the island of Haiti, with its revolutions, voodoo jungle rites and the like.

Contract Let for Dam Project on West Coast

Washington —(AP)—Secretary Ickes announced Friday award of a $34,442,240 contract to the Interior Construction company, Oakland, Calif., for completion of Grand Coulee dam on the Columbia river.

The contract, one of the largest ever awarded for a federal reclamation project, involves placement of approximately 5,250,000 cubic yards of concrete on a foundation dam recently completed at a total cost of $63,000,000.

Interior Construction company, low of two bidders, consists of a syndicate of 10 large contracting firms. Its members include Silas Mason company, New York City, Walsh Construction company, Davenport, Iowa, and Atkinson-Kier company, San Francisco, who combined to form the M-W-A-K company which built the foundation dam.

'Easy Living' Will be On Monday, Tuesday

Lovely Jean Arthur comes to the screen in another of the roguish, hoydenish roles which made her famous in "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" in the new Preston Sturges comedy "Easy Living," showing at the Elite Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, Bargain Days.

Sharing stellar honors with Edward Arnold, and appearing opposite Ray Milland, Miss Arthur plays the role of a working girl who is given a $50,000 sable coat under the most amusing circumstances, and then has to live up to it. The coat causes a crisis on Wall Street, saves a fashionable hotel from bankruptcy, patches up a beautiful love affair between Arnold and his wife, and wins Miss Arthur a handsome husband in the mile-a-minute story.

Miss Arthur's last stellar appearance was in "History Is Made at Night," in which she played a role similar to the one in "Mr. Deeds." Previous to this she was seen in the Cecil B. DeMille epic "The Plainsman," in which she enacted the now famous role of "Calamity" Jane.

"Easy Living" marks the first major appearance of the handsome Milland, the man who leaped to the top rung of screen popularity after his appearance opposite Dorothy Lamour in "The Jungle Princess." The cast also includes Luis Alberni, Mary Nash and over a score of other well-known players.

Hearings on Estates Set in County Court

Hearings on estates will be conducted by Judge Fred V. Heinemann at a regular term of county court next Tuesday. Cases on schedule include hearings on claims in the estates of Lena Rahn, Delia Bennett, Henry Beck and Frederick W. Krueger, and hearings on final account in the estates of Albert J. Schultz, Emma Schultz, John Newland and Mary Anna Newland.

Sir Francis Dyke Acland, a member of the British parliament makes his own neckties with a hand loom.

Winchell, Bernie In Return Match

'Love and Hisses' Will Open at Appleton Theater Feb. 5

Walter Winchell and Ben Bernie, those famous feudists who put puns into their punches, are back for the greatest return match in history in "Love and Hisses," which starts Saturday, Feb. 5, at the Appleton theater. This time the reason for all the barbed wit is the fight over their new sweet-hot from Paris, the saucy and vivacious Simone Simon, who sings operatic arias and popular ballads for the greatest surprise of the year.

This new-idea musical show from hit-making Twentieth Century-Fox features a great laugh-a-second cast, including Bert Lahr, Joan Davis, Dick Baldwin, the Raymond Scott Quintet, Ruth Terry, Douglas Fowley and Chick Chandler.

The punning funsters of "Wake Up and Live" get all excited over the talents of a cute little number fresh from Paris, played by Simone. Bernie, the "old maestro," discovers her first, and asks Winchell to help put her over by a "plug" in his column. Because she is Bernie's protege Winchell refuses even to listen to Simone, so the band leader concocts a plot.

The conspiracy works and Winchell's enthusiasm, syndicated in hundreds of newspapers, brings fame to the little French songstress. Winchell doesn't know that she is Bernie's singer until shortly before the "maestro's" new club is to open when Simone reveals her identity and exposes the plot to the columnist.

Winchell thereupon swears revenge on his favorite enemy and the laugh-filled climax presents the most hilarious idea in vengeance since happy endings were invented.

The companion feature on the program "International Settlement" is a drama that takes you beyond today's thrilling headlines. Dolores Del Rio and George Sanders have the leading roles and are supported by June Lang and Dick Baldwin.

Green's Representatives To Speak Here Feb. 11

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has promised to send a special representative to speak at the labor forum which will be held in Memorial chapel Friday night, Feb. 11, Alvin Rehfeldt, chairman, said yesterday.

John P. Burke, New York, president of the International Brotherhood Pulp and Sulphite workers, will be principal speaker at the meeting which has been called to acquaint laboring men and the general public with new labor legislation.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Appleton and Neenah-Menasha trades and labor councils. Three other Appleton men besides Rehfeldt are on the committee. Hilbert Luedtke, secretary, Wesley Babcock, and Herman Heling.

Go slowly, save lives

'THE BUCCANEER' COMING TO RIO

The above scene is from one of the most amazing outstanding pictures ever to reach the screen, "The Buccaneer." Its cast of thousands is headed by Fredric March.

Two additional big attractions will be offered on the same bill which comes to the Rio theater starting next Friday. "Popeye and Ali Baba and the 40 Thieves" is a full color featurette loaded with laughs and merriment.

The other attraction is "Audioscopiks," filmed in color and third dimension, and one of the most costly novelties ever produced. It is more funny and thrilling than a roller coaster ride, and all new.

CIVIL SERVICE GROWS

Washington — (AP) — Uncle Sam is an increasingly popular employer, civil service commission records show. The commission's business has tripled in some lines since 1932. Applications for jobs have increased from 221,494 in 1932 to 934,068 in 1937. Examinations have more than tripled and the number of appointments in the classified service has grown from 21,499 to 52,383.

'NAVY BLUE AND GOLD' OPENS SUNDAY

James Stewart, Tom Brown, and Robert Young lead the role of stars in "Navy Blue and Gold" which opens at the Rialto Theatre in Kaukauna Sunday.

"Navy Blue and Gold" is the story of three midshipmen at Annapolis Naval Academy who come from different environments and happen to draw the same quarters for their first year. All three of them are essentially fine, but with varying motives.

"Navy Blue and Gold" will hold every theatre patron for it has the qualities which interest all ages and all sorts of people. With drama, romance, comedy and football, it should rank as the most timely picture of the season.

Mae West Picture Opens Wednesday

'Every Day's a Holiday' Heads Mid-Week Program at Rio

Mae West returns to a role similar to the one in which she won international fame in "Every Day's a Holiday," the new comedy which will play on the regular Wednesday and Thursday mid-week program at the Rio Theatre. La West is a belle of the nineties with an accent on the wisecracks — the same dame she was in "She Done Him Wrong."

In "Every Day's a Holiday" Miss West is a lass who is torn between a desire on the part of Walter Catlett to star her in a new revue and the insistence of Edmund Lowe, a captain of detectives, that she get out of New York because of an alleged deal in which she sold the Brooklyn Bridge to a would-be-millionaire.

The story is laid in Little Old New York at the turn of the century and takes in its stride a New Year's celebration at Restor's famous restaurant, a mayoralty campaign — into which La West injects some showmanship — the New York theatrical scene in the days of "Diamond Jim" Brady, and the introduction of the automobile to the big city.

The big case of supporting players includes Charles Butterworth as a butler who is not averse to using his master's home and automobile to further his own social ambitions; Charles Winninger, the master, who is not averse to tempering a crusade for social reform with a little love making; Lloyd Nolan, a bad politician but a good judge of women; Herman Bing, Chester Conklin and many others.

The added feature on the same program is "The Jury's Secret," starring Kent Taylor, Fay Wray, Jane Darwell, Nan Grey, and Larry Blake. It is one of the most unusual mystery pictures ever brought to the screen.

Western Picture Showing at Elite

'Hopalong Cassidy' Returns in 'Hills of Old Wyoming'

Everybody who delights in the swiftly moving and colorful panorama of the American outdoor West will enjoy "Hills of Old Wyoming," the latest "Hopalong Cassidy" film showing at the Elite theater today and Sunday with William Boyd in the star role.

The romance of the picture revolves around the Indians on the vast government reservation in Wyoming and a crooked government agent who tries to use his wards as a cloak for his cattle rustling activities. When the ranchers, headed by Hopalong Cassidy, rise in protest they run into a head-on conflict with the Indians. All of Cassidy's hard-riding, straight shooting and sagacity are required to straighten out the resulting complications.

The historic customs of the Indians, their war dances, ceremonies and spectacular fighting tactics provide a colorful background for the picture. The savages' respect for courage which enables the fearless "Hoppy" to convert them from enemies into followers and to lead them with the ranchers in a combined attack against the rustlers, is also convincingly depicted.

Landskron Leads Menasha Quint to Victory Over Kiel

Forward Gets Five Field Goals to Give Bluejays 23 to 20 Win

Menasha—Young Henry Landskron, Menasha forward, saved the Bluejays from a humiliating defeat Friday night at Butte des Morts gymnasium in a non-conference basketball game when he hooked in five timely field goals to pace the Caldermen to a 23 to 20 victory over Kiel.

Hard pressed by the Kiel cagers throughout the game, the Bluejays were leading at halftime, 11 to 8, and despite Landskron's successful shooting, the Menasha aggregation had a hard time taking a 17 to 12 margin at the end of the third quarter. In the final period, the Eastern Wisconsin conference cagers staged a rally which fell short of knotting the score by three points.

It was apparent that the Menasha cagers, who have done some mighty scoring in Northeastern Wisconsin conference games this season, couldn't find the range of the basket. Free throws actually determined the margin of victory for the Bluejays. They accounted for only eight baskets, while Kiel sank nine. Menasha, on the other hand, dropped in seven free throws, while the Kiel cagers got only two gift shots.

Free Throws Help

Menasha did better than average in shooting their free throws, however, netting seven out of 12 attempts. And the Bluejays gave Kiel only five tries from the free throw line, the Kielmen connecting only twice.

The Bluejays took a 1-point advantage at the end of the first quarter, when Schneider, forward, dropped in two free throws on a penalty drawn by Anderson, guard. Heis, guard, boosted Menasha's total when he sank a shot from almost midcourt. Anderson and Buswell, guard, each hooked in a basket, with Knoll, Menasha guard, sinking the final point in the quarter.

Schneider got two more points on free throws in the second period after Resch, forward, sank a basket. Buswell got his second field goal which was followed by Nelson's 2-pointer. Then Landskron let loose his barrage of push and hook shots, netting his first basket as the half ended.

Gets 2 In A Row

He dropped in another bucket to open the second half scoring, but Nelson made good on a side shot. Then Landskron sank two in a row and Buswell scored to conclude the period. Nelson connected with his third basket to open Kiel's final quarter rally, but Ducharme, Menasha guard, and Landskron each got in a basket and Resch a free throw before Anderson sank two free throws and a basket in succession. Buswell lifted in another bucket, and then Ducharme made good on a donation assignment. Kiel cagers were peppering the ball at the hoop with little effect as the game ended.

BUILD THIS WINTER

It's Thrifty---It's Practical---It's Good Judgment!

THIS business of building a moderate priced home has been sadly neglected during the past twelve or fifteen years. It is true that there have been many improvements in individual products and pieces of equipment that go into the new home today. But, what about the methods of actually erecting that home? The same as they were ten years ago? Yes! for the most part except in the homes we are building. Why? Let us tell you.

Two years ago we started a study and research into home building methods. We found many things which we felt were neither fair nor right. Some of the more important were:

1. INSUFFICIENT PLANS, SPECIFICATIONS AND CONTRACTS

We found many cases where this resulted in work having to be torn out and changed, in controversies and argumenst about responsibility, in "buck passing" and costly extras that the owner eventually had to pay.

We found that this trouble could be corrected by having a highly skilled man on our staff who could prepare detailed, complete and individually prepared plans and specifications for each of our jobs. We also found that we could furnish this service without cost to the home owner because of the savings effected through careful study prior to actual construction.

2. HIGH LABOR COSTS

We found that skilled workmen had to receive unusually high rates per hour because the work was so seasonal. On the average they received poor wages, if taken on an annual basis, because they only worked eight or possibly nine months out of each year. They wanted more work but there was none. By providing steady work for skilled men throughout the entire year we have found that our carpenters and masons receive a higher annual wage and our customers have received skilled labor at a lower cost per hour. Surely no one can question a principle that provides a gain for all concerned.

3. MACHINE METHODS

We found that there were many operations performed by hand on the job that could be done better by machine in our shops. For example, to do a good job a carpenter must workat least 30 minutes to mortice a door for a lock set. We installed a high speed electric machine that does the same job more accurately in less than 2 minutes. We also found that by the use of power planes and routers we could do much more accurate work in the shop at only a portion of cost on many other operations.

4. OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

We found in the field of plumbing, heating and electrical work that individual sub-contractors could not anticipate their material requirements and consequently were obliged to purchase as they needed supplies in small quantities. Because of our large volume of business it is possible for us to place orders for these materials so that items can be purchased in car load lots that heretofore were bought one at a time.

5. THE RESULTS

THE SAME HOUSE FOR LESS MONEY?
NO!
A MUCH BETTER HOUSE FOR THE SAME MONEY

Our policy has been to find ways of saving money in the construction of homes and to re-invest those savings in the improvement of that house. Cracked plaster used to be common. We have through the use of untold reinforcing made it almost a thing of the past.

Storm Sash and windows used to rot out in all too short a time. Now ours are specially treated to resist rot and decay.

Outside doors used to be great places to leak cold drafts. Now our jobs are weather-stripped in addition to combination doors.

Most builders have been forced to raise prices during this past year due to increased material and labor costs. Our company has been able through efficiency of methods and buying to hold costs at the old levels.

Many people are under the impression that new home construction can be carried on only during the warm months of the year. Our modern methods, however, have made winter house building practical and desirable. Not only that, we have made winter the economical time to build your new home.

We will be glad to discuss and help you with your home building problems. Don't wait until spring. Start your home now.

Discuss Child Welfare Data in Citizens' Report

CHILD welfare was the subject stressed by William L. Crow, Appleton attorney who presided at the second meeting of the discussion group on citizens welfare sponsored by Appleton Woman's club last night at the Y. M. C. A. The group which is non-political and is open to any person interested in the problem of public welfare includes representatives of various local organizations. Mrs. Mabel Johnson is secretary of the group.

Mr. Crow discussed the principles involved in the investigation which was conducted by a Citizens Committee on Public Welfare under the direction of Governor La-Follette two years ago in Wisconsin, the report of which is being studied by the local group. He explained that the report on child welfare divides children into four groups, socially handicapped, physically handicapped, mentally handicapped and conduct problems. The agencies for general control, Mr. Crow went on, are seven: juvenile department of the board of control; children's boards; courts; juvenile, municipal and county; private agencies; foster homes; state public school at Sparta; and Milwaukee home for dependent children.

Overcrowded Conditions

Reading from the report, Mr. Crow showed the overcrowded condition of the Sparta school, 70 of the children being cared for in private homes and others being housed in an old school building which was condemned some years ago. He discussed the duties and accomplishments of the various control agencies.

Copies of the report of the Citizens Committee on Public Welfare were distributed to those attending the meeting last night. About 30 persons were present.

Organizations which have responded to the invitation of Appleton Woman's club to participate in the meetings by electing two representatives include American Legion Auxiliary, Appleton Exchange club, Appleton Woman's club, Appleton Trades and Labor council, Appleton Business and Professional Women's club, Catholic Daughters of America, Appleton Chamber of Commerce, Daughters of the American Revolution, Elk lodge, Girl Scouts, Appleton Junior Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis club, Knights of Pythias and Pythian Sisters, Lions club, Rotary club, Appleton Teachers association, Appleton Ministerial association, Outagamie Bar association, Outagamie Medical society, White Shrine, Children's Home and Aid society.

Hollywood
Sights and Sounds

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood — The set of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" was tight-closed against visitors the other day. Reason: Miss Claudette Colbert, enacting a sequence in a bathing suit, insisted on privacy.

There are virtually as many reasons for "closed sets" as there are stars who demand them. Best publicized is Garbo's, the Swedish lady's shyness. Any star who makes a habit of excluding observers is forthwith labeled as "pulling a Garbo."

Colbert

Hepburn

Katherine Hepburn, for some time now, has been "pulling a Garbo." Although she came from the stage, where players are supposed to like audiences, Katie will have none of them in the sound cages. In mitigation, it may be remembered that most of her stage shows were flops, not calculated to build confidence.

Joan Crawford used to like visitors. Now she usually sweeps to her dressing room at the click of the latch. Any star, beset by rumors of domestic trouble, is likely to act this way. Denying gossip becomes monotonous.

Francis

Crawford

Kay Francis shies from strangers, sometimes bars friends to avoid the former. Fred Astaire, certainly an unassuming fellow, asks privacy when he gets fussed and bothered with his work, which is intricate enough at best. Edward G. Robinson, usually expansive, likes to "die" unobserved. Carole Lombard, lately, has been avoiding most women reporters, chats freely with men. Mae West, with few exceptions, likewise shuns the feminine pen. Their sets, however, are seldom closed.

Paul Muni likes being watched, occasionally likes to talk to visitors, but is extremely "choosy" in picking them. He's the sort of actor who gets wrapped up in a role and doesn't want to be jarred out of it by time-of-day stuff.

Robinson

Muni

Operatic stars you'd expect to be temperamental don't live up to the name. Grace Moore comes closest, although she's never been anything but gracious when I've been around. It's after the observer leaves that Grace speaks her mind, if it so happens she didn't want visitors that day. Lily Pons is as friendly as a child, and it's not an act. Where Gladys Swarthout is concerned the whole world could watch her work—and welcome.

Bette Davis had a closed set the other day—I think it was her first. She'd just had word of her father's death. Pat O'Brien, Humphrey Bogart, Warner Baxter, James Cagney, John Boles, Leslie Howard, Joan Blondell, Myrna Loy, Rosalind Russell, Errol Flynn are others who never have closed sets—at their requests. They sometimes close the Leslie Howard sets—not to keep visitors out, but to keep Howard in. He's likely to wander away, visiting other sets.

W. S. Van Dyke has the welcome mat out always (except when directing Norma Shearer), but many other directors are touchy. Anatole Litvak ('Tovarich") is constitutionally opposed to visitors, where Archie Mayo and William Wyler and Cecil B. DeMille and Clarence Brown (except when directing Garbo) thrive on them. John Ford, who doesn't mind visitors with a reason for visiting, is "choosy."

During the making of "The Hurricane" a Goldwyn executive arrived on the set with a friend. There was an almost instant cessation of activity. Ford sat down, waited until the pair, in some embarrassment, departed before he proceeded.

In addition to her brief reviews of the current Broadway plays, Miss Edmonds will give a longer interpretative review of one play. Last year when she appeared here under the auspices of the Neenah-Menasha Emergency society, she presented "Tovarich" in such a review.

'Birds of America' Shows Species in Natural Color

BY CLARA HUSSONG

Shortly after the publication of Audubon's "Birds of America," (MacMillan Company), in the popular priced edition issued late last fall a local librarian called my attention to the fact that the book was available at the library. At that time I merely glanced at the book, reserving the pleasure of studying it thoroughly in a leisurely manner for some future time.

Clara Hussong

Since then I've spent two afternoons at the library, turning the colorful pages of the book and gloating over the color and life that only Audubon, in his day at least, was able to put in his paintings of birds. The book contains 500 plates in all, a few of which were familiar to me, having seen them reproduced in books and magazines at various times.

Most of these plates were originally published in London by Audubon during the years 1827-38. These were of species which for the most part he collected for himself during the many years he roamed through the wilderness of the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and the tangled mass of vegetation in the southern states.

Studied in Action

The last 65 plates were published later when he was able to obtain specimens of western birds outside the range of his early explorations. In order to obtain the exact coloring and marking of each bird he was compelled to shoot them. However, he studied them in action first, their appearance in flight, hovering over a nest, or while feeding, so that his finished work had none of the lifelessness which characterized the work of other artists.

In looking through the book you will notice that he mistook for new species several specimens which were merely the female or young of a familiar bird. Also he painted and gave specific names to several which no other naturalist before or since, has been able to find.

A number of reasons have been given for this mistake. First of all, we must consider the difficulties under which he was working. Comparatively little was known of American birds at that time and many of our common birds had no counterpart or even close relative in the Old World. Even today, with hundreds of bird books available, many amateur bird students err in the same way, mistake a female or young for a separate species, or through careless or hasty observation miss certain markings.

Those of us who have spent a great deal of time in bird "hunting" know how often the sun glinting on a bird's plumage will bring out a color which actually is not there. Then too, occasionally we run across a bird which differs slightly in color or general appearance from the rest of its tribe.

Beautiful Flowers

Early in July one year I saw a red-winged blackbird with a decidedly forked tail. It was too early for moulting to have caused the loss of the middle feathers in his tail so I've come to the conclusion that either the feathers were pulled out during a fight or else the bird just naturally differed from his fellows.

As for my unknown warbler of a few years back, which I mentioned in this column several times, even Audubon had never seen it. He has a mythical "Carbonated Warbler," however, whose colorings and markings are a combination of several species of warblers. Several of his paintings were made from memory and it is possible this is one.

Another of his "mistakes" is the Cuvier's Regulus, which he named in honor of a naturalist friend. The bird in every way resembles a ruby-crowned kinglet except for a white line on the forehead under the ruby dot in the crown. He may have been playing a joke on his friend Cuvier. A. one time in London he painted a red-headed swallow and passed it off as a common American bird, either in a spirit of mischief or to impress his London friends.

The two afternoons I spent looking through this beautiful work took me only half-way through. My progress was slow because I became so absorbed in the beautiful flowers, the colorful sprays of berries or bits of shrubs and trees which form the background for the paintings. A few lines of print below each picture gives the bird's name, its length, its range, habitat, nesting habits and food.

I am looking forward to several more fascinating afternoons in which to finish looking at the birds and then I'm going to start over once more, this time ignoring the birds and concentrating on the colorful and alluring plants in the background.

BOOK REVIEW

Christopher Morley Admirers Will Like 'The Trojan Horse'

By Jean Wiley Thickens

"The Trojan Horse" by Christopher Morley.

Admirers of Christopher Morley will welcome with enthusiasm his first novel in five years: "The Trojan Horse." And those who heretofore were but lukewarm adherents of this most versatile of our American writers will be for him to a man, after reading his hilarious presentation of the ancient legend made immortal by Boccaccio, Chaucer, and Shakespeare. The story of the Trojan horse, of Troilus and Cressida, of Paris and Helen with the "face that launched a thousand ships" is presented here in original and most delightful fashion. There is no time wasted in superfluous description, the action is continuous and the reader is breatheless with laughter, as well as impatience to discover how Mr. Morley will treat each familiar situation as it arises. At times the humor is almost ribald, while at other points in the book the tragedy of this old love story is heart breaking in its intensity. And beneath it all is an obligato of symbolism which may require a second reading to detect and interpret.

The literary form varies with the theme. At times it is straight narration while at others it is the most exquisite blank verse. No matter what the form however, the reader's interest never flags for an instant.

Modern Environment

Though the actual date of the historic events described here transpired in 1185 B. C. the Trojans possess radios with a broadcasting station, "Illium," which announces periodically in the most up-to-date manner. There are also telephones, automobiles, and a modern night club where the Greek and Trojan soldiers meet after battle hours each evening (for they have union hours for fighting) and here they mingle in the intricacies of the modern dances while enjoying "old fashioneds" and "gin sours."

King Priam and his fifty sons enjoy Sunday evening supper together in the palace. Here they rag their august father and complain about the unfairness of having to fight the Greeks whose armor and shields are of a more modern and efficient type. "But then" declares Deiphobus (one of King Priam's sons (the name of whose mother King Priam can not at the moment recall) "the Greeks ignore all the rules of sporting warfare."

All the characters familiar to readers of this immortal classic are present in Mr. Morley's comedy: King Priam and Queen Hecuba (who is always falling asleep over her knitting because she will oveat.) Hector the mighty Trojan general, Helen and Paris, Troilus and Cressida, Cassandra the prophetess who is an avowed pacifist, Ulysses and Menelaus, appear here in improved form, to contribute their bit to the best thing Christopher Morley has written up to date.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stenger, 320 N. Union street, will leave Monday for New York, where Mr. Stenger will attend the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. On the return trip they will stop at Notre Dame, Ind., to visit with their son, Robert, who is studying at Notre Dame university. They will be away about 10 days.

NEW LONDON — Now that they've started, it appears there'll be no stopping the New London High school cagers who casually tripped Neenah, conference contenders, 30 to 22, at the Washington High school gym here last night. It was New London's fourth consecutive victory and the defeat lowered Neenah's chances for the conference title.

The Staeymen rubbed it in last night for the New London B squad handed the Red Rocket Bs their first conference defeat this season, 22 to 17, after a last period rally. The teams played to the largest local crowd of the season.

Both varsity squads played extremely cautious ball except for the last few minutes when the Rockets put on the pressure in vain as they trailed by 10 points. Officials called fouls exceptionally close.

Jim Meshnick, Red and White center, became the idol of New London fans as he worked calmly and pnpretentiously under the net and dumped in a total of six baskets to keep the locals in the lead. His guarding and floorwork was more spectacular for on several occasions he followed his threatening opponent up to the basket and literally took the ball from his hands.

Jackson Paces Neenah

Jackson proved the smoothest player on the Neenah squad and garnered nine points with three buckets and three free throws. The Rockets appeared worried and definitely off their game from the start as they missed the hoop. Their floor game suffered as they were called frequently for double dribbles and carrying the ball. Many of their passes were intercepted by the Stacymen as both sides presented a close man-to-man defense.

New London led practically all the way except for a brief time mid-way through the game. The score was tied at 16-all at the half while the Stacymen were ahead 7 to 3 and 25 to 18 at the end of the first and third quarters.

The game was less than 45 seconds old when Meshnick took a short pass under the hoop and set the ball in. Jackson converted im-

NEW LONDON YOUTH STAR BOWLER

New London—The only youngster in New London league bowling, Keith Prahl, above, 17-year-high school senior, holds this season's all-league series record on Prahl's alleys (his dad's) with a score of 653 from games of 225, 215 and 213. Keith is a regular bowler in the Waupaca County Classic league and the local Business Men's league. Shown in action above, he starts the ball with a back swing that goes almost over his head.

DE PERE—Holding what seemed to be a comparatively safe lead for three quarters of the game, West DePere Black Phantoms flopped defensively and offensively last night to let Kaukauna High school nose them out in the final minute of a rough-and-tumble fracas, 24 to 23. The defeat was the third in seven games for the Phantoms and it eliminated them from the title race in the Western division of the Northeastern Wisconsin conference. The victory was the second in seven starts for the Kaws.

McCarty

Cliff Vanevenhoven, diminutive forward, played the stellar role in the hair-raising finish. He sank a field goal that tied the count, 20 to 20, early in the fourth quarter, then hoisted another shot from below the net to cinch the game with less than a minute left of playing time. He was ably supported in his determination to win by Bill Alger, center, and Bill Peterson, forward, who also sank shots when they were needed. An airtight defense by the Kaws limited shots by the Phantoms and they failed to connect from the floor in the last period, getting only three free throws.

Phantoms Lead 8-5

Grabbing the tipoff on the first jump, Leo Van Sistine dribbled fast to register for the Phantoms. After Alger shot from outside the circle and then connected for a free throw, Van Sistine rung up another basket, which Lambie matched. Van Sistine executed a gift shot, Honey Vaessen shot a basket and Connie Berken made good on a free

Kimberly Cagers Beat St. Mary's

Holy Name Team Wallops Menasha Squad in Catholic Boy Conference

Kimberly—The Holy Name grade school cagers defeated St. Mary's Menasha, 16 to 8, in a Catholic Boy conference game at the clubhouse Friday afternoon. It was the second win for the Holy Namers this week as they defeated the grades of the public school Wednesday.

Although the Kimberly school was slow in getting started in the first quarter they managed to tie the score at the half 4-all, as J. Fieweger and Bobby Willis each dropped a bucket. In the third period Kimberly ran out in front by adding nine points, bringing the score to 13 at the end of the quarter while they held their opponents to a lone bucket.

Bobby Willis of the Holy Name boys was high point man with three buckets and two free throws. J. Fieweger and L. Kneepkins each made two buckets for the remaining points. Bretthaur of the visitors made two baskets and Kolasinski made three points with a bucket and a free throw.

Next week the Kimberly school will travel to Little Chute where they will have a game with St. John's and the following week they meet St. Mary's at Kaukauna.

BY GORDON McINTYRE

APPLETON High school cagers dropped their third straight game in the Fox River Valley conference last evening at Armory G with Green Bay West the winner, 28 to 21. But, strange as it may seem, the Terrors showed better basketball than last week against East; they lost primarily because the other team had too much height and size.

The Terrors went into the game with three boys, who have been more or less regulars, on the sidelines. Jim Bailey, guard, had a back injury, Glen Bowers, forward, has been ill all week, and Don Paulie, center, was reported ailing and in no condition to play. As a result it was a comparatively small and slight team that faced West with one big forward, one big guard and a big center.

The Terrors were driving in to the basket wil greater regularity last evening but the shots were hurried; the ball was handled much better than a week ago and if the squad hadn't been outclassed on size it might have done better.

Appleton counted only three field goals during the evening, remaining in the game because of its ability at the free throw mark. It made 15 free throws out of 20 chances on 16 fouls by West. Only one West boy left the game on personals, however. Besch and Rogers each had five free tosses for the Terrors while Besch and Oliver got the only baskets.

West Gets 10 Free Throws

West didn't do so badly at the free throw mark, either. The Wildcats scored 10 free throws on Appleton's 12 fouls good for 14 chances. The invaders scored nine field goals, four by Wilson, tall center, and three by Anderson, tall forward.

The first quarter was pretty much a parade from one free throw line to the other. The period ended 5 and 2 for West with the Wildcats showing two goals and a free throw and Appleton two free throws.

A field goal gave West a 7 to 3 lead in the second quarter but when Appleton got its first goal, a long shot by Oliver, the count was 9 to 7 for West. The half ended 11 to 10 with Appleton having eight gift shots and one field goal.

In the third quarter West caged two goals while Appleton was getting a free throw. The Terrors tossed a couple more free throws and things didn't look so badly when the score was 16-all. Two free throws and a drive-in and a basket by Anderson made the score 20 to 16 for West as the third quarter closed.

The final quarter saw West score a goal and a foul shot on the same play twice to increase its margin. Appleton got three free throws and a field goal.

OSHKOSH EASY VICTOR

Fond du Lac — Oshkosh High school cagers had no trouble pounding out a 40 to 17 victory over Fond du Lac here last night in a conference game. The Indians led 19 to 11 at the half but started to turn on the heat in the third quarter when they led 31 to 15. Bixby and Erdlitz led the Oshkosh scorers and G. Wilderman the Fond du Lac scorers.

The Ships led 15 to 9 at the half and 19 to 14 at the third quarter. Morris, Manitowoc forward, was the scoring star of the game with 10 points.

L. C. Legion Hopes to Get Revenge on Mike's Tavern Five Tomorrow

LITTLE CHUTE—New London Mike's Taverns, which team defeated the Legion basketeers recently at New London to end a 13-game win streak, will show before Little Chute fans at 3:15 Sunday afternoon in a non-league contest but one which nevertheless will be for keeps. The game will be played at St. John gymnasium. The Legion is especially irked about the defeat because it had been boasting of a string of wins that couldn't be touched by any club except Appleton's Fox River five.

Free throws beat the Legion at New London, the squad claims, for the Taverns made 10 of 17 shots. The Legion made only three of four. The Legion also didn't like the many fouls called on it compared to four for New London. From the field, the Legion scored nine goals and the Taverns seven.

In a preliminary game at 2:15, the Little Chute Merchants will meet a team of has-beens. The once-upon-a-times will show "Preecha" Van Vanael, who will take over the captaincy so he can argue and still remain in the game; "Porky" Milton, former Shoes player and later St. John mush coach; "Skinny" Van Gompel, who played with the Chuter stars when a player ran up the wall under the hoop to score; "Silver" Wildenberg, who may need a barrel if he can't find trunks big enough; "Polly" Mollen, now an austere assistant cashier at the bank; and "Butch" Weyenberg who promises to be the loudest squawker if his team gets behind.

George Vanderloop will handle the whistle wear earmuffs to keep his ears from getting burned, and running shoes to keep going after the game.

throw to put the Phantms in an 8 to 5 lead before the quarter closed.

The Phantoms stretched their lead in the second quarter on two rebound shots by Berken and a basket by Vaessen. Both of Berken's baskets were negotiated after misses from the free throw line by Henry Gerke, who failed the first time this season on free throws. For Kaukauna, Lambie got a basket and Alger, a free throw, the half closing 14 to 8.

Kaws Get Going

It was in the third quarter that young Vanevenhoven started finding the range. He shot two ringers early in that period, and Peterson and Alger got one basket each. Vaessen and Gerke hooked shots after taking passes from Berken while Van Gruensven and Van Sistine made good on free throws to keep the Phantoms ahead, 20 to 16.

The fourth quarter was a see-saw affair after Alger and Vanevenhoven knotted the count at 20. Van Sistine's free throw let the Phantoms enjoy a brief lead, then Peterson shot from the circle to put the Kaws ahead by one point. Gerke's gift tied the count at 22, Vanevenhoven's short shot decided the contest. Van Sistine got one chance after fouled and he made good.

New London High Upsets Neenah in N. E. W. Circuit

mediately on a personal to make the score 2-1 and then his teammates spent some time missing long shots until Stern was fouled and added a point for New London.

Jackson succeeded with a long shot from the side to tie at 3-all but Hoier picked a rebound from under the basket and set the ball in for a 5-3 lead. A couple of New London set plays fizzled while several Neenah men missed on gift shots. Meshnick retrieved a teammates over-shot near the hoop and followed to give the Staeymen the edge at the quarter by 7 to 3.

Try Long Shots

Long shots began to count for the invaders in the second period. After Meshnick pivoted under the hoop for another 2-pointer Jackson became desperate and tossed half the length of the floor. The ball swished through and after Ben Stern pushed one in from the side for New London, Jackson tried another medium long shot with success.

Extra points from the gift line had the tally at 12-8 when Jack Hesselman dribbled through a hole in the Bulldogs' defense and sunk a goal. Schmidt swished two charity shots off Hammerberg to tie the game. Kettering potted one for a 2-point Neenah lead when he was left open momentarily and then an even exchange of free throws brought the score to 14 to 16 in favor of Neenah. With six seconds to half-time Meinhardt, New London guard, heeded the cries of a raving fan to shoot a long one. The ball swished through to tie the game at 16-16.

The first three minutes of the last half were scoreless until Dan Schmidt took a pass and pushed one through the net to give Neenah the edge. Hoier retaliated with a dead shot from the side. The rest of the quarter went to Meshnick and Ben Stern, the former setting the globe in twice from under the net. Stern tossed one to provide a comfortable lead, 25 to 18.

Meshnick was the only one to score during the first four minutes of the last period during which time New London tried a little keep away and both teams whiffed on free throws. Hammerberg left the game on fouls and was relieved by Meiklejohn.

The game roughened as the Rockets fought for the ball during the last half of the quarter and the Staeymen benefited by three more points on personals. Jack Hesselman rattled a long one which set the board at 29-21 with two minutes to go and then managed to drop another free throw before the final whistle ended all hope of recovering victory.

Kettering went out on fouls with a half minute left to play. H. Hesselman carried three personals at the half and Coach Jorgensen sent Krueger in to relieve him during the third quarter. The Rockets missed seven free throws, New London five.

The B teams put on a fine exhibition as a preliminary game and the Baby Rockets led the local lads for three quarters, 2 to 0, 6 to 5, and 15 to 12. A final burst in the last period was highly helpful to the New London cagers as Wallace Hammerberg starred under the basket and Kenneth Ross, forward, on the floor. Both got six points. Miller sparked the Neenah squad with three buckets and a free throw. Both teams showed a full quota of substitutions.

Woods Signed to Meet Legrone at Milwaukee

Milwaukee— (AP)— Harvey Woods, Chicago lightweight, will meet Jimmy Legrone, of Cedar Rapids, Ia., in one of the two eight-round main events at a boxing show at the Eagles club Monday night.

Woods was signed by Matchmaker Al Fain after Bus Breese, who had offered to substitute for his brother, Baby Face, decided he could not go through with the match. Baby Face Breese is ill at his Manhattan, Kas., home.

Larry McPhail Turns Up With Van Mungo's Contract

NEW YORK—(AP)—If you should ask Van Lingle Mungo, he'd probably tell you Larry MacPhail is the guy who has the blinding speed.

Mungo

MacPhail, appointed ten days ago as executive vice-president of the Brooklyn Dodgers, started off on a trip through the middle west with Burleigh Grimes. And about the time everyone thought he must be getting his second wind in discussing a deal for Mungo with the St. Louis Cardinals, he bobbed up in Brooklyn again yesterday with the news that he had Mungo's signed contract with him.

Now Van, as you have heard, has been a very difficult person to sign up. He lost a large part of last year's pay because of fines and suspension without salary, and since then has had quite a bit to say indicating he still was peeved with the Dodgers. That, however, proved no barrier to MacPhail.

"Van is perfectly satisfied with the terms and is ready to give the Dodgers the best season of his career," he announced. "And what is more, I'm confident he will do all of that."

The meteoric MacPhail further explained he had arranged to meet Mungo, who had been in Florida, at Columbia, S. C. there they talked over all of Van's troubles and agreed upon a fresh start. He didn't reveal the terms of the contract, but baseball men believed it must about equal last year's $15,000 salary.

From St. Louis, however, came the word that the Cardinals' president, Sam Breadon, intended to "make every effort to obtain Mungo." So there may be further dickering.

Cochrane Boasts Home Run Pair in Greenberg, York

Detroit Pilot Says They'll Outdo Gehrig and DiMaggio

DETROIT —(AP)— Mickey Cochrane isn't predicting an American league pennant for his Detroit Tigers but he expects to show the circuit this season a pair of home run twins that will improve on the Lou Gehrig-Joe DiMaggio performance.

That would be a flock of home runs. DiMaggio led the American league last season with 46 and Gehrig had 37.

Hank Greenberg, towering first baseman, and Rudy York, rookie catcher, are the Cochrane hopes. Greenberg hit 40 homers in 1937 and York was good for 35.

Basis of Theory

Cochrane bases his theory on three points. They are:

Greenberg's competitive spirit will spur him to greater efforts with York in the lineup regularly.

York, now the regular catcher, will play in more games unless he is injured. Last season York appeared in 104 contests but in many cases he batted only once, appearing as a pinch hitter.

New Detroit stands in left field will cut down the wind that formerly hampered right-handed hitters.

Rowe Unsigned

Cochrane said he will leave Monday for Florida to prepare for the training season. The Detroit manager said the club had heard nothing from Lynwood Rowe, whose arm failed him after two sensational seasons on the mound. The big right-hander is unsigned and remains on the voluntary retired list, but the Tiger management expects him to report at Lakeland, Fla.

If Rowe's arm comes back, President Walter O. Briggs of the Tigers will be ready to talk contract and Cochrane will have the best pitching staff since the club's championship days.

Chicago Cagers Hope To Get Out of Cellar

Chicago—(AP)—Chicago's Maroons, hopeful of performing in the style which gave them a victory over the strong Loyola university team last week, will try to shoot their way out of the Big Ten basketball cellar tonight—at Minnesota's expense.

The teams tangle at Minneapolis in the only Western conference game of the evening. The Maroons, losers of three games in as many starts, have been strengthened by the return to action of Bob Cassels, forward who has been nursing a kidney injury. Minnesota has won one game and lost three.

Sonja Refuses $200,000 To Cancel Skating Tour

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK —(AP)— Here's one you can go to sleep on, boys. . . . If and when Dr. John Bain Sutherland (Jock to some of you) decides to call it a day at Pitt, a California school will be his next stop. . . . Judge Landis is one of the easiest to get to of the big shots. . . . Van Mungo is apt to be traded over the weekend and if he is, the Giants, Cards or Pirates will get him. . . . Max Schmeling should be a lead pipe cinch to lick Ben Foord tomorrow in Hamburg.

Sonja Henie, who has impressed everyone here as being "regular," turned down an offer of $200,000 to cancel her skating tour and return to the movies. . . . Which should be good news to Mike Jacobs who is awaiting the blonde Norwegian star (with more or less open arms) in Miami. . . . Old Hugo Quist, who used to manage Paavo Nurmi, is the brains behind the Henie tour. . . . Finns, you know, are not long on conversation. . . . Once Hugo and Murmi were on a trip to the Pacific coast. . . . As their train pulled out of Chicago, Paavo said: "Look at all those cows in the field." . . . As they drew into Los Angeles, Hugo asked: "What cows?"

Coast reports say if Tony Lazzeri isn't managing the Cubs by July he'll chuck the whole thing. . . . Colonel Ruppert is chuckling over the reaction of the Yanks, notably Messrs. Gomez and Gehrig, to their 1938 contracts. . . . The Cunnel meant to raise 'em more all the time. . . . But if Joe DiMaggio gets more than $25,000, you can sue the rooster who is writing this. . . . As a matter of fact, Joe is ready to sign for that figger (and be darned glad to get it). . . . This corner will lay you good old United States dough Henry Cotton, the British open champion, doesn't pay us a visit this year. . . . Mr. Bill Terry gets in town today. . . . Oh, oh. . . . Yesterday one N. Y. sports columnist referred to Bill as "Sweet William," but he was careful to put it in quotes.

That squib about a Saratoga Springs (N. Y.) basketball team dropping 27 in a row brought only a sneer from Three Rivers, Mich., which lays claim to the world's record by losing 53 just like that. . . . Walter (Good Time Charlie) Friedman (he sponsored Primo Carnera, we warn you) says the next fistic sensation will be a Mongolian. . . . Nebraska's basketball team includes two fellows who were on the United States Olympic team. . . . Harry Mehre's salary at Mississippi U. will be ten grand, which ain't hay, as Messrs. Harry Kipke, Don McCallister, et al, will testify.

New York Giants Aren't Happy Family Any Longer

NEW YORK —(AP)— There's a sneaking suspicion around the Polo Grounds these days that the Giants aren't that "one big, happy family" any longer.

For years and years it's been the proud boast of the National league champions that they were different. Each spring, when other magnates had their hands full handling the squawks, there were no holdouts, no howls or harsh words there between the boss and his hired hands.

But things, queer things, seem to be happening this spring. The motto that has been shouted from Coogan's Bluff for so long is all changed. At the moment, it appears to sound something like "let's all take a crack at the boss." Definitely, some of the boys have the bit in their teeth.

When rowdy Richard Bartell added his "holler" to those of outfielder Hank Leiber and catcher Harry Danning regarding 1938 salary offers, it marked the first time in years the Giants had been bothered with such trivial matters. To say the least, the front office is in somewhat of a dither.

A year ago, even though they were champions then, the signed contracts poured in so fast on President Horace Stoneham and Secretary Eddie Brannick that there was talk of hiring a special filing clerk to get them put away in their proper order and place.

But since then, a second-string catcher has been "discovered." He is Danning, who proved such a lifesaver and pleasant surprise after first-stringer Gus Mancuso was injured last year. And Harry realizes it. In fact, he's so well acquainted with the situation that he already has returned his contract unsigned, and advised the Giant management he wants a 100 per cent salary boost to $12,500, for 1938.

After Danning there was Leiber, who received around $8,000 or $9,000 last year. And now rowdy Richard speaks his piece—with gestures.

Rowdy Richard, you understand, is the shortstop sparkplug of Terry's Terriers. At $17,000 last year, he was the highest priced shortstop in the National league, if not in the entire big time. But Rowdy Richard had a 1937 record to go along with that salary, and now he's not at all satisfied that the Giants failed to raise the ante for 1938.

Milwaukee—(AP)—President Henry J. Bendinger of the Milwaukee Brewer American association baseball club announced last night the receipt of signed 1938 contracts from Mickey Heath, Brewer regular first baseman last year, and Fred Schulte, veteran major league outfielder.

Schulte went to the majors from Milwaukee in 1926. He was made a free agent last fall by the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bendinger also said that Bob O'Farrell, former major league catcher and manager, had signed as pilot of the Brewer farm at Bloomington, Ill., member of the Three-Eye league.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

BY ALAN LEMAY

SYNOPSIS: A widespread revolt of savage Dyak tribes makes it impossible for my uncle, James Clyde, to run guns to the besieged rajah, his client. A further complication is the presence of the Forrester's yawl, the Avon, in tropical Balingong bay. Christine and her brother, Robert, blankly refuse to leave because they are completing a "plan" of their dead father. Unwilling to quit the island with the young English girl in danger, we are attempting to reach Rajah Mantusen up-river.

Chapter Six

UP THE SIDERONG

That first slow, unearthly approach into the mouth of the Siderong was like nothing in my past experience in the islands.

Since I had been with James Clyde we had felt a few breaths of action. There had been a couple of dark nights in uncertain anchorage, when I waited on watch, suspecting every shadow on the water—with good reason. There can be a great tensity in that, while you wait, trying to make your eyes do more than they were able to do in the heavy hot dark. A few random shots had come of those nights, followed by a great flurry of defense out of proportion to the actual danger. Or was it out of proportion? We never know how many enemies there had been; or how easily they might have taken the Linkang. But never before anything like this. . . .

Out here at the anchorage the water was deep and blue, with the living, electric blue that you never see anywhere except in the tropics. But the mouth of the Siderong—it slid brown and heavy into the bay, faintly discoloring the water all about it. It was like the river laid of polished teak.

Its first reach was broad and lake-like, ending in a blank turn. After that the river belonged to the jungle. There was something terribly still and empty—something weirdly bleak and unwholesome, like the sad, empty anteroom of a tomb, about that vast first reach.

We moved with a steady, even rhythm, workmanlike and unhurried. Nondescript scum though they might be called, those men had a firm deep grip upon the essentials of the work that they did. Methodically, they put the whaleboat toward the mouth of that unfriendly river — simply because James Clyde told them to do it, and it was James Clyde who paid their wage.

Hundreds of Eyes

When I was not watching my course, my eyes were upon James Clyde's face. He was looking at the Avon. I wanted to turn that way too; but I stiffened, and would not permit it. Watching my uncle's face, I could all but sense the moment when Christine Forrester came to the rail of the Avon. I could not entirely read the veiling of James Clyde's eyes, and the quick droop of one corner of his mouth; but I knew that she was there. So did the rest; every oar in the boat was inevitably very much aware of her. They stroked more cleanly and pulled harder because they knew that a girl was looking on.

Clyde said, "Keep to the middle of the stream, Mr. Thorne. No man will lay hand on a weapon unless I give the word. Cut down your stroke, I want no hurry."

We pulled across Siderong bar, and up that first long lake-like reach; and gradually, as we did this, the insistent clamor of the agongs died away. We saw no one yet, we knew that hundreds of eyes must be watching us nevertheless.

I kept calculating what we could do to defend ourselves if the Dyaks should close upon us. In actual effect our weapons could not accomplish much. At stern and bow, where Clyde and I could reach them, lay three rifles apiece, muzzle-loading cap-lock guns, good for only a single shot. Once they were fired there would never be time to load them again. With these we could hope to pick off three or four of the chiefs.

There were also a couple of double-barreled shotguns, loaded with enough lead to blow them up, and eight pairs of the new cap-and-ball six-shooters, slotted in racks under the thwarts so as not to disturb the caps. Most of the Dyaks were getting used to firearms by this time, but a lot of their first dread of them remained, and some of them could be counted on to break and flee before the explosion of the guns.

If they did not break and flee, then we were through. A hundred shots will not clear a river that is suddenly swarming with 100 war

Woman With Domestic Complex Happier Wedded

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I am 32. Live alone with an aged mother. Work in an office and earn $26 weekly. The hours are short and the work very light. Recently I have been growing acutely aware of the fact that Mother can't be with me much longer and when she goes I will have no one. I am a very domestic woman, extremely fond of children, and in order to be happy must have some one who loves me and some one whom I love and can fuss over. Now my problem is this: A man wants to marry me. Five years ago I would not have considered him for a moment, but when I realize that five years from now I will be 37 I become panicky. My suitor is a fine man and I think he will go far in the business world, but we have no common interests at all. I love books, music. They bore him. I like sports and games. He doesn't even play bridge and I am top-notch. He has no physical attraction for me. I let him kiss me and did not like it at all. It wouldn't be marrying for money, because right now he is rather down on his luck, but he is sure of a comeback. But I want a home. I want children of my own. Life isn't going to be much to me without them. I would make a swell wife. Am not the type to live alone and like it. What should I do?

BETTY.

Answer

If you are absolutely certain that you are one of the women whose happiness lies inside of a wedding ring, perhaps you will be wise to marry this man who is good and kind, whom you respect and admire and who seems to have all of the husbandly qualities, except the one that is really the most important of all—and that is congeniality. For it is not to be denied that a girl's matrimonial stock is slumping after she gets in the thirties, and that every year makes it less likely that Prince Charming will ride down her street.

Also it is true that a woman with a strong domestic complex is happier married to any decent man than she is single. Her home, her kitchen, her children are the vital interests of life to her and the husband merely the means to an end, so he doesn't greatly matter.

However, before you make this momentous decision of marrying just to be a-marrying, you should have a heart-to-heart session with yourself and find out if a home will compensate you for the lack of companionship and the love you should feel for your husband. Just having some man sitting across the hearthstone from you isn't jolly unless he is the right man, and you can be mighty lonesome trying to talk to a man who doesn't know what you are trying to tell him.

A lot of women at your age get into a panic over the fear of being old maids. They see all of their friends marching to the altar while they are left behind. Then any man who comes along looks like the last call to the dining car to them, and they rush into marriage with rejected suitors, widowers with many children, or men who have never been able to make a living, and spend the remainder of their lives regretting it.

It is fine to marry if you can find a man you love and who loves you and with whom it will be a joy to walk hand in hand through the years, but it is a terrible thing to risk marrying a man who will bore you the remainder of your life. And the lot of the old maid has many compensations.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am a married man of thirty years' standing. When first married, I was bewildered by the excessive sentimental valuation my wife placed upon anniversaries. On one occasion I happened to remember an incident of our courtship and brought her flowers. She was so delighted that she nearly went out of her mind. I thought if such a little thing gives her so much pleasure I would repeat it, as I have done ever since. I didn't see much sense in it then nor do I now, but the investment in thought and money has paid wonderful dividends. If husbands realized how much little things mean to their wives and took the trouble to pay them a few compliments and bring them a few flowers, there would be far less unrest and agitation in domestic circles.

JOHN F. MAC C.

Answer:

For forty years I have been telling husbands that it would be peace in their homes and money in their pockets to pursue the tactics of courtship after marriage, so it is a pleasure and gratification to me to find that my favorite theory has been tried out and found to work by such an intelligent husband as yourself.

Why women put the inordinate stress that they do on the observance of anniversaries and having their husbands make them small presents and pay them little attentions, the only One who made that strange and complex creature He devised as a sidekick for Adam knows. But that is the way they are built—such being the case, and men knowing it to be the case—it is stupidity in husbands not to recognize it and guide themselves accordingly.

If a wife can be put amiable and beaming by being told she is still young and beautiful; if she will have hysterics of delight over her husband remembering the day they become engaged; if she would rather have a 5-cent bunch of flowers he bought himself than a bunch of orchids she had to order from the florist, why, in Heaven's name, hasn't he sense enough to humor her whims? It would save so many scraps and tears and so much money.

Dear Miss Dix—I was engaged to a boy who gave me a diamond engagement ring. He broke the engagement and now wants his ring back. Should I give it back to him?

ALICE MARY.

Answer:

If you have any delicacy of feeling or are even commonly honest, send his ring back to him.

Children of Family on Relief Face Big Problem

BY ANGELO PATRI

The darkest shadows of the unemployment blight fall on the children and young people. The young people in their late teens are hardest hit. They are at the age when personal and family pride are at their full. They want to be proud of themselves, of their people and of their homes. Home relief kills all that.

I am not complaining about home relief. Children must be fed and clothed, a roof kept over their heads. They must be sent to school and to church. Life for them must go on, maimed and broken though it be. Relief is just what its name implies, but oh, how the children hope that the need for it will soon be over!

They suffer many times a day. For them there is no freedom of association such as youth delights in. They cannot say, "Come over to my house," for the simple reason that there is nothing in their houses to invite friends to enjoy. The atmosphere is heavy with dread; the food is scarce, the entertainment, talk. The talk usually is a concern about the plight of the poor, wages, social injustice and how to cure it. Sad talk for youngsters. Especially as much of it is and must be futile talk.

These youngsters have no solid ground to their hopes and ambitions. IF they could get to college; IF they could get a job in a machine shop; IF they could marry, they would do this or that, and so fill an honorable place in the world. It is this lack of hope of filling an honorable place now and tomorrow that is killing the spirit of the young folk.

All that we can do to help them, encourage them, provide ways and means for their future usefulness and present growth, must be done. I know we have camps, and Movements, and classes, and Relief; and people are working hard at them in an effort to lift the load off Youth. Nobody can do that. All our movements are artificial aids, and that is precisely what troubles Youth and causes the best schemes to fall short of success. Only a normal life of work and play, the individual's own expression and experience, born of the individual's keen desire, can satisfy the individual soul. God created us One and One. He did not wave His hand and say let Youth be born. He sent each child out, perfected by His divine hand, to live his life on his own responsibility. Something has gone wrong with man's interpretation of living nobly, and the mistake has about wrecked a generation of children.

My suggestion for remedy? I am a teacher. I deal with children and young people as they come from society to school. I know how the children suffer, and how they enjoy, and how they grow. People like me must turn to the leaders of industry, to the leaders of economics, of law, tell them the story and ask for help.

What Youth needs is hope.

What it must have is a feeling of security, not in details of fundamental, human, physical need, but security of aspiration, spiritual living. They must feel that it is good sense to hope and plan and work for the day to come. Just now they have no such hope. We must put our heads together, pool our resources and unite our strengths, not for ourselves, but for the sake of these young folk who must carry on after we let go. The situation is serious.

Wrinkles At Sixteen Are Unusual

Wrinkles at Sixteen

L. K. S. writes: Although I am only sixteen, lately I have been troubled with lines under my eyes. My skin is very sensitive and wrinkles easily. Please tell me some remedy.

Wrinkles at sixteen are unusual and uncalled for. Make sure that you are in good health, that you get sufficient sleep, that you do not strain your eyes. Use a good, soothing emolient cream at night before retiring applying a thin film over the entire face (except nose, chin and forehead area) and fingerprint it generously around the eyes, leaving on overnight.

Melanie writes: Could you let me have a few exercises to reduce the calf of my leg and my knees? I would appreciate it if you would.

There is very little you can do about the knees because for the most part I am sure the bone structure is the width you object to. Try flexing and loosening the knees a half dozen times at first. Add gradually, until you can do it some twenty-five times night and morning. As for the calves, running in place, kicking, knee bending and rising on toes are all excellent exercises. If you would like a complete set of exercises, please repeat your question and send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

Editor's note: Thousands of letters are received by this department for reply through the column. These are answered in turn. It may therefore be many weeks before your inquiry appears, therefore if the subject is vital and you wish immediate reply, please send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope. Your letter will be treated in absolute confidence. Please do not expect your inquiry printed in this column on a date mentioned by you as this is obviously impossible.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

HER SON'S FIANCEE

Dear Mrs. Post: I've never had much time for social activities because I've devoted most of my life to supplementing the family income by running a gift shop in order to send our children to college. We are now to have the first wedding, my son marrying a very lovely girl who is socially prominent in a neighboring town. I know her but have met her family only when I called on them with my son after his engagement was announced. Will you please tell me just how I may fit myself into these wedding plans becomingly and what I could do for the bride, under the circumstances.

Answer: You do what any mother of the groom would do: Show whatever interest in and kindness to the girl you can, but don't try to do more than you are able. If you can give a party for her, possibly to meet your own and your son's friends combined, or possibly only the young people, so much the better. If you live very simply in a very small apartment where it would be difficult to give a party, perhaps you can make room in your shop. In other words, put your shop to this use if you can, and if you can't and it would not be too much of a financial effort, give a party in a hotel or club or elsewhere. Or if you can't give a party at least you can ask her to wherever you live, and also show some hospitality to her family. The wedding plans, as you know, are always made by the family of the bride. The family of the groom has little to do further than supply the bride with a list of family and very intimate friends who are to be asked to the house, and a list of acquaintances who are to receive either invitations to the church alone, or announcements.

Dear Mrs. Post: We have received an invitation to a fiftieth anniversary reception in the evening. Are we expected to take a present, and if so, will you give me some idea of what this could be? And what kind of clothes should my husband and I wear?

Answer: Remember that it is not necessary that you give anything to the golden bride and groom unless you know them very well. If you do give them something, it is better to send it to their house. Yellow flowers are always most appropriate, or anything that has a little gilt on it. For example, china, glass, little books stamped with gilt, etc. Wear evening clothes of the type characteristic of your community. In other words, if it is at all formal, your husband should wear tails and you full evening dress. If less formal, then your husband would wear a dinner coat and you a semi-evening dress. In a really simple community you wear whatever you do to go to any other evening party.

A Little Saturday Talk

After leaving Aden, Arabia, we steamed out toward the Indian ocean.

To leave the Red sea, we had to pass through what the Arabs have named (in their language) "the Gate of Tears." In a later story I may tell you why it was really a "gate of tears" for me, but now I want to speak of the Indian ocean.

The Indian ocean ranks third among the five oceans of the world. It is not so large as the Pacific or the Atlantic, but is far larger than either the Arctic or the Antarctic ocean.

If you look at the figures in half a dozen atlases and geographies, you almost surely will find they do not all agree on the size of the Indian ocean. This may be explained by how hard it is to fix the boundaries. The Indian ocean meets the Pacific south of Australia—where does one end and the other begin?

Experts do not agree on the exact area, but in round numbers we can give the size of the Indian ocean as 28,000,000 square miles. This means it has more water surface than all the land surface of North America, South America and Africa combined.

In southern parts of the Indian ocean are great masses of floating seaweed. Each area covered by the weed is known as a "sargasso sea." The Atlantic ocean also has sargasso seas. There are legends of ocean vessels getting tangled in the weeds, and so being lost. It is likely, however, that most, if not all, of those stories are false. Both steamers and sailing vessels have proved that they can get through masses of sargasso weed.

I have not seen any example of it so far, but I am told that the Indian ocean is noted for a sight of a strange kind. Sometimes, at night, the water seems to be on fire! It does not appear as a blazing fire with high flames, but there is a strong whitish glow on the water, even on the rising and falling waves.

The strange light is supposed to be produced by "Noctilucae." Millions and millions of these tiny sea animals rise to the surface. Each one glows a little, and the glowing of so many together makes the water seem to be "on fire."

Better to Remain at Low Level

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Theoretically, the function of bidding is to achieve a final contract representing the greatest trick-taking possibilities of two combined hands. Theory and practice do not always jibe, however. There are risks that inevitably attend "exploring." In a bridge sense, the risk is that, in the search for the best trump suit, too high a bidding level may be reached. With hands whose honor strength is doubtful, it is better to rest at a reasonably good contract, while the opponents remain quiescent, than to climb in to the "doubling range" in search of a better one.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 spade	Pass
2 hearts	Pass	Pass	Pass

Particularly in match point duplicate it is wise to open third hand with a minimum holding. This, however does not mean that the opener should continue bidding merely because he gets a so-called positive response from his partner. North's action in passing to the two hearts was eminently proper. Presumably South had a five card suit for his overcall at the two level and, although North himself had only two, it was far better to drop the bidding at a low stage than to search for a better spot at the possible expense of reaching a high level. The logic of North's action was made manifest by the final result.

Against an opening diamond lead the declarer, playing quite normally, lost only two heart tricks and two clubs, for a score of 90 plus the partscore bonus. Actually, he could have made four-odd by leading a heart toward dummy and, when West properly ducked, putting in the ten. But this would have been incorrect technique, succeeding only because of the particular heart break that existed.

Had North searched for a better spot, it probably would have been found, but the result would not have been as happy. Had North bid two spades over two hearts, South then would have shown his diamond suit. North, of course, would pass and four-odd in diamonds would have been made. But this would have returned only a point score of 80, plus 50, which would not give as good a match point score as did the heart contract.

USE SCRAPS FOR SCOTTIE QUILT

SCOTTIE APPLIQUE QUILT PATTERN 1517

Cut this alert, little scottie out of bright scraps to make a charming quilt. He's effective on pillow or scarf ends, too. There's just one big, simple patch to applique on this 9¾ inch block. A bit of outline stitch will give him whiskers and bushy eyebrows. Make his collar of colorful ribbon or bias-binding. Pattern 1517 contains accurate pattern pieces; a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the scottie and suggests contrasting materials; complete, simple, instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing; a yardage chart; diagram of quilt to help arrange blocks for single and double bed size.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Appleton Post-Crescent, Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Write plainly Pattern number, your name and address.

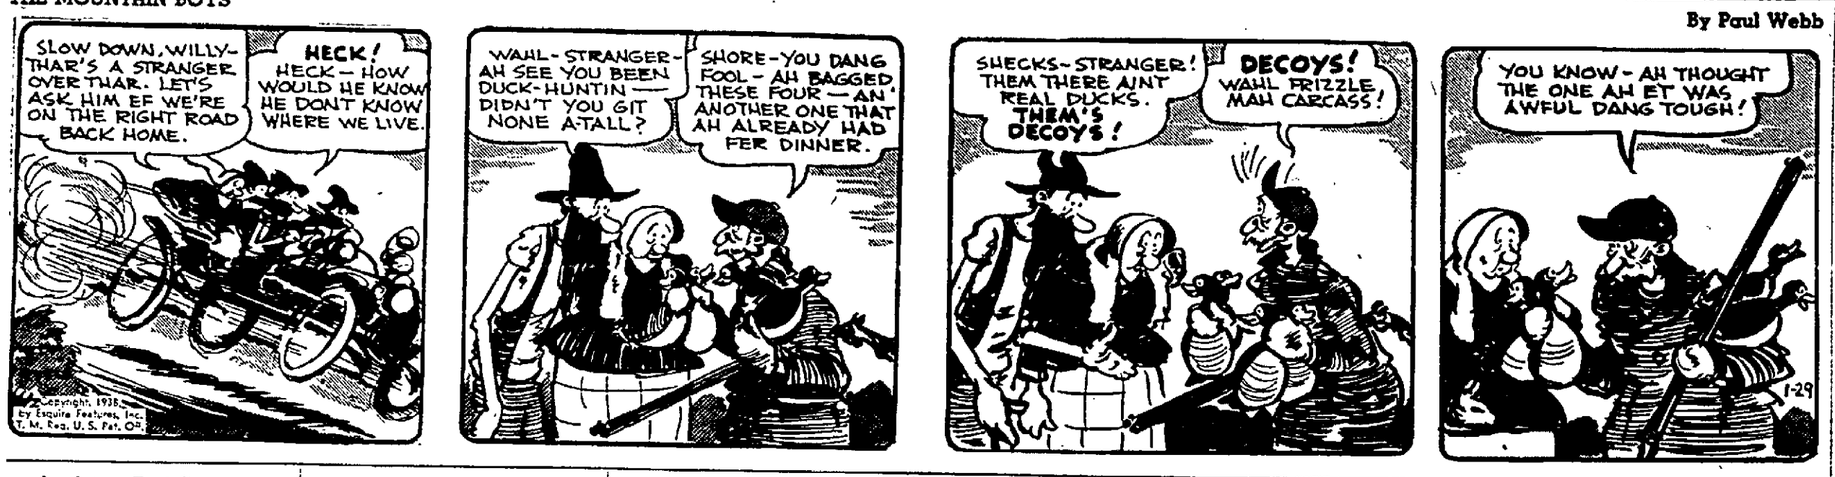
An Empty Room Rented Through The Want Ads Will Fill An Empty Purse

THE MOUNTAIN BOYS

By Paul Webb



CLASSIFIED DISPLAY CLASSIFIED DISPLAY

Colonel 'Wild Phil's' Blue Army Headquarters

The Battle of the BLUE SNOW

(Final Installment)

The snow was so deep that only Leola's antlers, which, because of the animal's huge size, appeared like small trees, showed above the surface. Thus it appeared, because of their being covered with Blue Snow, that the members of General Brandt's Red Army on Leola's back were members of the Blue Army encamped in a woods. This ruse so fooled the Blue Army sentries that General Brandt was able to get his entire Red Army into the center of the Blue Army lines before the trick was discovered by Captain 'Yah-Yah' Hamm. In spite of this tremendous strategic disadvantage Colonel 'Wild Phil's' Boys In Blue fought gallantly but were finally forced to give way in disorder. Red Army headquarters announced the capture of 15 used car and truck buyers, two of which were captured just in the act of signing on the dotted line in Lieut. Wolfe's order book. And so ended the Battle of the Blue Snow, an engagement destined to to go down in history along with Gettysburg, Waterloo and the Marne.

(The Red Army is down but not out. Watch Monday.)

BY VICTOR EUBANK

New York —(AP)— Selected stocks enjoyed a moderate buying lift in today's market, but many issues lacked sufficient support to get far out in front and a small assortment tubled just before the close.

In dealings apathetic throughout, gainst of fractions to a point or so were offset by losses in depressed categories.

The fact the list had experienced a relatively lengthy decline led some speculative forces to switch positions, brokers said.

Improved tendencies displayed by secondary bonds was a helpful influence. Commodities, however, drifted over a trendless range.

While extreme advances were shaded or cancelled near the close, favorable attention was accorded American Can, Sears Roebuck, Youngstown, Woolworth, J. C. Penney, International Harvester, Anaconda, Kennecott, Santa Fe, Phillips Petroleum, Southern Railway, Chesapeake and Ohio, Eastman Kodak and N. Y. Shipbuilding.

Transfers approximated 450,000 shares.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem failed to make the grade. Steel operations were expected to show a small drop next week. In addition this group had to contend with the action of the U. S. Steel Corp. in reducing "white collar" salaries and hours by 9 per cent in a revival of the "share-the-work" plan in force during the worst of the depression.

Douglas, Boeing and United Aircrafts gave ground under profit realizing attributed partly to further disappointment that the presidential rearmament message did not recommend a larger building program.

Inclined to back away were Chrysler, General Motors, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Inland, Consolidated Edison, Du Pont, J. I. Case, U. S. Gypsum, Allied Chemical and Oliver Farm.

Superior Utility Case Is Ordered Reopened

Madison—(AP)—The public service commission issued an order today reopening the Superior utility acquisition case.

The order provides for a review of the entire record, including the $4,625,000 price which the commission held the city of Superior should pay for purchase of the Superior Water, Light and power company.

The reopening, however, is not primarily for the purpose of revising the valuation, which was fixed last August, the commission said.

Specific reasons for reviewing the case, now involved in litigation before the Dane county circuit court, were not given. The only comment the commission would make was that several matters have arisen which require investigation.

Wheat Prices in Decline Under Steady Selling

Disappointing Foreign Demand Proves Bearish Factor

BY FRANKLIN MULLIN

Chicago — (AP)—Persistent selling lowered wheat prices more than a cent a bushel today.

Disappointing foreign demand for North American wheat, except for substantial sales to Portugal, and forecast of snow or rain throughout much of the grain belt prompted the liquidation. A leading professional trader was reported to be closing spreads.

Wheat closed ½-1⅛ cents below yesterday's finish, May 92⅜-⅞, July 87½-¾, and corn was ½ off, May 59½, July 60½-⅝. Oats lost ⅛ to ¼.

Rallying Tendencies Seen in Rail Bonds

New York—(AP)— The prolonged new year decline in a railroad bonds, the biggest downswing in that section since 1932, showed further signs of playing out today and rallying tendencies took hold in a number of issues.

Scattered liquidation in the rail list, mainly in little traded issues, caused further sharp breaks but the rank and file displayed perceptible improvement.

Speculative demand seemed to have been spurred on the assumption the drastic January decline in rails probably had gone too far. Aiding the weekend improvement, it appeared, was the forecast of a group of rail leaders spring would see a decided upturn in traffic.

U. S. government loans were uneven in a narrow market.

New Increase in County Aid Funds

Applications Continue to Be Made at Waupaca Courthouse

Waupaca — Payments of three types of social security aids by Waupaca county during January—old age pensions, aid to dependent children and aid to the needy blind—continued to increase over previous months. Checks will be mailed Monday to 594 old age beneficiaries with a total of $11,138; aid to 129 families with dependent children will cost the county $3,878 for January while 18 needy blind will receive aid totalling $335.

Applications are continuing to come in with increasing rapidity and the reason for the increase may be attributed directly to the general weather conditions, especially the drought of last summer, according to Pension Administrator Hugh C. Johnson. There were five deaths during the month, the largest number heretofore being three.

The pension department was authorized by the county board to expend $125,000 for old age assistance during the coming year, 80 per cent of which will be returned by state and federal aid, the remaining 20 per cent or $25,000 to be raised locally. The estimated expenditure for dependent children's aid is $45,-000 with $28,000 to be returned and $17,000 put into the tax roll, while for the blind pensions, the approximated expenditure is set at $5,500 with $4,400 to be returned by state and federal aid and $1,100 added to the taxes.

Week-end Digest of Business Activity In Appleton and Vicinity

Tell Advantages Of 'Gold Stripe' Brush for Paint

Appleton Glass & Paint Co. Describes Necessity For "Flags"

Just as important as the paint you use on that job around the house or for a major painting job, is the brush, explains the Appleton Glass and Paint Co., 410 W. College avenue. This firm sells the famous gold Stripe brushes "as clean as a whistle"—and the story of this brush is an interesting one.

Much of the bristle used in Gold Stripe Brushes must travel half-way around the world before it reaches the factory. Regardless of its source and any cleaning and dressing in the country of its origin, every bit of bristle is washed and boiled as soon as it is uncrated. This primary cleaning removes all dirt and foreign matter that accumulates in transit, and also straightens the bristle as well.

There are two major advantages in manufacturing brushes with clean bristle. It helps to keep the entire plant more healthful for those who are employed in it, and produces a brush more uniform in quality, which will give satisfaction from the moment it is put into work.

A clean brush is essential for satisfactory painting, regardless of color. Though it may be more evident in applying white or lighter shades, a dirty brush will make newly painted surfaces unpresentable

If you will examine the tip of a Gold Stripe bristle you will see that it is split into two or more prongs. This is known as the "flag", and is produced entirely by nature. Were it not for this actual "splitting of hairs" a brush would not carry paint. It would merely streak it roughly across a given surface, and there would be no such thing as smooth, uniform application.

Many attempts have been made to produce bristle synthetically and substitutes, such as horsehair, are sometimes used, but to date no method has been devised which will produce the most vital part of all—the flag. The makers of Gold Stripe Brushes have always, and always will continue to select and dress bristle in a way that will give their users the most effective and satisfactory application possible.

Keep these facts in mind when buying a paint brush, and make it a point to see the Gold Stripe at the Appleton Glass & Paint Co.

Huge Fruit Crop Aids Stocking Up At Extra Low Cost

Grocer, or Wisconsin Distributing Company, Can Advise Choice

The 1937-1938 apple and citrus fruit season has made available to the consumers of this country the largest combined production that has ever been experienced. Along with the heavy production is a quality that perhaps has never been equalled and prices tht are unbelievably low. Prices are so low that every home should have at least one bushel of apples in the fruit cellar continually as well as a box or half box of oranges and grapefruit. A half a grapefruit or an orange or glass of orange juice to start off breakfast, any time of the day or with meals and before retiring should be a ritual these days.

No other fruit presents to the housewife or the dietitian such wide opportunity for its use in pleasing menus as does the apple. It may take its place admirably in several ways—as a zestful appetizer, as an accessory to the meat course, as a component of the most important part of the dinner or as a satisfying dessert. Appleton are nutritious and healthful. Nature gives great care to the building of the apple and in the long days it hangs in the sun she packs it full of vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates in the form of sugar, and beneficial acids. Apples as they come from the tree, ripe and juicy, are ready to eat. They have maintained their standing as the foremost between-meal snack. They are suited to table use either uncooked or cooked. Apples have color appeal which is useful in meal planning. They are appropriate in the crisp, zippy salads, and, as apple pie—well, apple pie still holds its place at the top of the dessert list.

Ask Grocer

Your favorite grocery store can get at all times from the Wisconsin Distributing Company apples for every purpose. This company suggests for the housewives the following varieties in bushel baskets that are now in their best season. Snows Wagners, Jonathons, Baldwins, Rome Beauties, and McIntosh. These apples come into Appleton continually in car lots and are in the hands of experts from the time of arrival and go to your grocer in prime condition for delivery to you. Modern warehousing, refrigerating, and other protection devices assure ripe, crisp, and appetizing fruit at all times. In the home apples should be kept in a cool place or in the refrigerator so that they stay crisp and do not become mealy. A cool apple is much more appetizing than a warm one.

As with apples this season so with oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines. The groves of California, Florida, and Texas have brought forth an abundance of these fruits such as has never been seen before and of a quality that cannot be surpassed. To see a carload of these fruits and to enjoy their aroma as they arrive fresh and only a few days from the place of production is a real treat and a high compliment to the genius of the people who are responsible for growing, packing, and transporting them to us. It used to be that an orange in the stocking at Christmas was a great luxury. Today oranges and the other citrus fruits are as common on our tables, or should be, as the potato. Grapefruit, oranges, or orange juice for breakfast now is almost as much of an American institution as ham and eggs. Orange juice or oranges eaten out of the hand is getting to be a national habit.

The "Kid Glove" orange, the tangerine, has also found its place and has become plentiful. Eaten out of the hand or in salads they are unequalled. They possess a tang that is very enjoyable and are easily peeled without staining the hands. Because of their easy peeling quality they are an ideal fruit for the "lazy man."

Apples, orange, grapefruit, and tangerines are now available in heavy quantity at unprecedentedly low prices. Their quality is better than ever before. Your grocer can get them for you from the Wisconsin Distributing Company in fresh and keepable condition at any time and he will be glad to deliver them to you in bushels, boxes, half boxes or in any quantity you may wish. Phone your order to him. If you want advice as to the variety of apples or oranges best suited to your purpose he can give it to you. If his phone is busy call the Wisconsin Distributing Company and ask for Mr. Cohodas or Mr. Leonard, who will be glad to give you the benefit of their knowledge and experience.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

By Lichty

"Would you like to try it on our Mr. Snodgrass?"

Good Eyesight Is Most Valuable Possession, Deserves Protection

The most valuable possession of any human being is good eyesight. Only one pair of eyes is given to any of us and it must last a lifetime. Through the eyes we acquire 87 per cent of our knowledge and control 80 per cent of our actions. No other sense or faculty is used so constantly or means so much to our success and happiness through life.

Against these admitted facts it should be expected that America would be a land of 'eye conservationists". However, the opposite is more true for we have been even more extravagant with this essential natural resource than with our ores and minerals. Scientists state that over 30 per cent of our young people in schools today suffer from defective eyesight, resulting mainly from neglect of proper lighting conditions in home or school. More than half the people, moreover, over 40 years of age are handicapped by poor vision. Further, in at least eight out of 10 homes the light is entirely inadequate for comfortable, easy safe seeing.

This staggering toll extends to more than impaired eyesight. Continued eyestrain, in addition, is depressing, fatiguing and exhausting. Much of the irritability found in so many homes, many nervous backward children, a great deal of headaches, nervous disorders, and lowered vitality with its diminished resistance to colds and other ills can be laid at the door of poor illumination.

Keeping this in mind, the Maynard Electric Service, located at 115 E. Spring street, which offers a solution for improper lighting, warns that you play safe. Protect your eyesight, suggests this firm, with the good light furnished by correct lighting equipment. Have enough light in your home so that even the poorest or oldest eyes can see easily at such light-demanding tasks as reading, card playing, studying, dressing, and sewing. No other convenience in your home, the Maynard firm continues, will mean as much to your family and friends and none can begin to contribute so much comfort. You can take no precaution too great to assure the best seeing conditions for the members of your family and, as a result, enable them to enjoy the benefits of better lighting and, consequently, feel better, work better, and lead happier lives.

The Maynard Electric Service is at your disposal to handle all of your lighting problems and needs. Merely 'phone this firm's headquarters by calling 2730 and immediate attention will be given to your problem. You will find a display of over 400 pieces in this firm's stock to aid you in making your selections if further lighting or replacements are needed in your home or office. Correction of inferior lighting is bound to pay you big dividends.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

praus. Each of our men had between his feet a parang, or a hanger, or a kris, but these were only for that queer comfort which comes from feeling that at least you are not completely helpless as the finish comes. If the Dyad praus closed, bristling with the long barber, rod-pointed spears, our blades would be no more use than a bunch of mops.

The first open reach was three-quarters of a mile, though it seemed much more. We reached the end of it at last, and wheeled slowly through the deep turn. After the first bend, the river twisted continuously; and in its second winding we made our first actual contact with the Dyaks.

A 20 paddle prau, about three-quarters manned, was drifting along about half way out from shore. They must have known of our approach while we were a long way off; but they appeared to have no plan. At sight of us they turned and shot the canoe against the barricading roots of the pagatpat, where they hung on, watching sullenly.

I studied the prau, for it had a queer type of figure-head, never seen in the river Siderong; obviously that prau had come from many days away.

As I saw that, I was overwhelmed by an awful sense of the magnitude of this revolt. I was just beginning to realize why the towering jungle held so many drums. Here was a Dyak conspiracy more widespread than any of us would have conceived possible. Nothing short of a miracle can bring even two or three Dyak pangiraps together; yet here were fighting men from all the north coast of Sumantang.

Once more it was forced in upon me that something was queer and wrong about this whole situation. It was all very well for Clyde to say that what was wrong was that the Avon did not know its business. There was something else.

There was something else — and the people of the Avon knew what it was. Perhaps they did not know their business, and perhaps they did not even understand what they knew. Yet the conviction was firm in my mind that Christine Forrester possessed some all-important information that we did not.

"Hold it," my uncle said.

The eight oars lifted clear of the water and hung there, while he listened. The uncanny silence that had come over the jungle continued.

Clyde said, "Pull on a little more."

The oars dipped, and the boat moved slowly up-stream again, tentative and uncertain.

Will the silence of the jungle be broken, Monday?

OLD FASHIONED?

No, of course not. Then why continue along using letterheads, statements, printed office forms, business cards, billheads, order blanks and the like which have all the earmarks of being old fashioned as to type faces used, general set-up, and artistic arrangement? Your letterheads, statements, etc., if dressed up with new type faces and modern styling will create in the minds of your customers a much more favorable impression of your business than that given by old fashioned printing.

The use of type faces that correspond to the nature of your business the proper selection of stock and the correct combination of paper color and ink are only a few things which go to the production of "printing that pleases."

The record of the Chris Roemer Estate printers, 119 S. Appleton street, measures up to the qualifications necessary for a printer to turn out work of this caliber more closely, perhaps, than the majority of printing businesses anywhere. The firm is always ready with ideas and suggestions for improving your present printing and the creation of new printing. Estimates are given gladly and without obligation. The telephone number is 1790. Why not phone them now and find out about the possibilities for bringing your printing up-to-date.
